From the Strategy Plan of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation

‘The central purpose of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation is to build exceptional leadership capacity in Africa through its programmes.

‘The Mandela Rhodes programmes will develop individual human skills across African society, to help the continent achieve success and prosperity, and full participation in the global world.

‘The Mandela Rhodes programmes will be unique, measurable, sustainable, and economically efficient.’
The year 2008 seemed to see much attention being given to birthdays, and it was gratifying that at least some of the focus was on the youthful Mandela Rhodes Foundation, celebrating the fifth anniversary of its operations. In a period of great interest in South African and African political developments, and no doubt one of great challenges, it is wonderful to see some institutions making such extraordinary progress and doing such immeasurable good for the future of our continent.

The Mandela Rhodes Foundation continues to identify and nurture, in ever greater numbers, the next generations of excellent, ethical African leaders across all areas of society. I much enjoy being introduced to the successive cohorts of Mandela Rhodes Scholars. This year was special in this regard, as I had the pleasure of receiving the 2008 Scholars at my offices in Johannesburg at the beginning of the year, seeing all the Scholars from 2005–2008 together at a celebratory event in Bishopscourt in August, and being introduced to the ‘Class of 2009’ at an end-of-year function with them in Cape Town in December. These groups of Scholars are unfailingly impressive, and their diversity and potential is remarkable.

Although it is young, The Mandela Rhodes Foundation is solidly established and institutionalised, giving me confidence that it will continue to do its important work far into the future. There can be few roles more important or more constructive than playing midwife to new generations of leaders, so badly needed in a period of world history that cries out for exceptional leadership.

The donors, both long-established and newly in partnership with us, are honoured elsewhere in this Yearbook. You have my personal gratitude for your continued generosity and commitment to the work being done in my name.
A Mandela Rhodes Scholarship is much more than a bursary, though the costs of Scholars are generously covered during their period of study. A Mandela Rhodes Scholarship offers young Africans who show academic prowess and broader leadership potential an opportunity which is unique on the continent.

Those elected to a Mandela Rhodes Scholarship complete a post-graduate degree at Honours or Masters level while simultaneously participating in a customised leadership development programme with their Scholar cohort, as well as benefiting from a personalised mentoring programme.

Details of the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship programme are to be found in this Yearbook, as well as on the website: www.mandelarhodes.org

On pages 26 – 57 we introduce more fully the 94 young Africans who make up the first five cohorts of the Mandela Rhodes Scholars.
A Message from the Chairman

The year 2008 will be remembered by most organisations in Africa and around the world for its unprecedented turbulence. The non-governmental and charitable sectors were certainly not immune to the storms that battered and continue to pummel the financial markets, as the international credit squeeze put pressure on philanthropic funds and potential donors suddenly found themselves needing to preserve liquidity. In many cases this meant having to ask potential beneficiaries to wait until circumstances stabilised before resuming discussions.

In this dramatic context, not before experienced in our lifetimes and so markedly different from the first five years of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation’s operations, it is particularly gratifying to be able to write the following sentence in this annual report to all our donors, supporters and friends: 2008 was a record year for the MRF.

As is reported elsewhere in this review, we had our largest-ever group of Mandela Rhodes Scholars in residence in the course of the year – the ‘Class of 2008’ numbered 30 Scholars. We were therefore right on target in terms of the expansion of Scholar numbers.

More remarkably, there were fundamental breakthroughs for the MRF on the fundraising front (reported on elsewhere in this Yearbook). These ensured that the Foundation ended the year comfortably ahead of its targets for the preserved endowment, and that multiple-year agreements with rock-solid donors meant that financial health and stability will continue through whatever 2009 and beyond hold for all of us. This is a privileged position to be in, and the Board of Trustees is delighted and thankful that good planning has led to good fortune.

The Board is absolutely confident that the Foundation can continue at its current level of operations on a wholly sustainable basis. That is good news indeed, and it vindicates the decision taken at the beginning of the journey to build this Foundation, namely that programme implementation would take place only at a pace justified by our accumulating financial reserves.
But of course no organisation can be entirely shielded from what is happening in the world economy. In our case it is a question of whether the Foundation can realistically be expected to grow at the same exponential rate of the past five years over the next five as it runs up to its 10th anniversary in 2012. This will be the subject of detailed debate and decision making by the Trustees.

In the meantime management has thought it prudent to prepare for a period of consolidation (at current or slightly increased levels in terms of the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships programme) after a long run of extremely rapid expansion. We are pleased that this option is readily open to the organisation, rather than it having to prepare for a phase of contraction.

Nonetheless, as with all sensible organisations in the current climate, a thoroughgoing cost-reduction exercise is being implemented and it is expected that meaningful savings will be realised without in any way detracting from the unique and highly successful elements of the Scholarships programme (described in more detail elsewhere in this Yearbook). Our Executive, Finance/Audit/Risk and Investment Committees are regularly engaged with management on these and other relevant matters.

The management team deserves heartfelt congratulations for bringing The Mandela Rhodes Foundation to this point in the year of our fifth anniversary, and in such robust health to face the future with confidence. The Mandela Rhodes Scholarships are part of the fabric of the higher education and leadership development landscape, this after only a few years of being operational, and that is a tribute to the Foundation behind the programme.

As always, the year’s Class of Mandela Rhodes Scholars turned out to be a delight in every way. The talent and diversity of each successive cohort is nothing short of breathtaking, and gives cause for hope and confidence regarding Africa’s future leaders.

In this anniversary year we had the particular pleasure of bringing together in one place, for the first time, all the Mandela Rhodes Scholars elected from 2005 – 2008. As our Patron Mr Mandela mentions in his message, the function at Bishopscourt in Cape Town was memorable indeed for all involved.

During the year under review the Board of Trustees held their annual meeting at Rhodes House in Oxford, thanks to the hospitality of our founding partners the Rhodes Trust and in particular the Warden of Rhodes House, Sir Colin Lucas. The fact that there was so much that was positive to be reported on and discussed is the result of continuing committed effort by many people: the Trustees, members of the Executive Committee and the other Board committees, our various service providers (some who do this pro bono), our donors, those assisting in fundraising activities, the tertiary institutions partnering us, our sister Mandela organisations, and all our friends and well-wishers. My sincere thanks to all.

As we close the page on an outstandingly successful 2008, we eagerly look forward to the future. The ‘Class of 2009’, introduced later in this Yearbook, is up and running and by the time we get to the interviews for the ‘Class of 2010’ we will pass the 100-Scholar mark; a happy milestone.

GJ Gerwel
Chairman
The Mandela Rhodes Foundation
Cape Town
The fifth year of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation saw yet further progress and achievement of which the Rhodes Trust, as co-founder, is extremely proud.

As a Trustee of the MRF I have seen at first hand how the organisation is taking root and flourishing. There is so much young talent in Africa that the ground is outstandingly fertile. It is a great privilege to have the opportunity to meet some of the Scholars whom the MRF has backed: it is impossible not to be optimistic, in spite of all the problems of the world, when you see the abilities and dedication represented by the growing group of MRF alumni.

As Shaun Johnson points out elsewhere in the Yearbook, it was a particularly satisfying development that Bishopscourt should be acquired, both to preserve it in appropriate use, and to add greatly to the facilities available to the MRF.

Economic conditions in the UK and world-wide have deteriorated very sharply over the last year; and the immediate future looks pretty unpromising. This makes the MRF’s achievement in fundraising even more remarkable. The original Rhodes donation has effectively been matched, and it is now realistic to see a permanent future for the MRF, properly endowed. Of course we would like to do much more, and Shaun and his dedicated staff are continuing to make headway even in present conditions. The leadership skills MRF instils are all the more needed in difficult times.

But if we had seen how rapid would be the progress when we started, I think we would all have been astonished and delighted. This progress is a tribute to the magic of our Patron’s name and the affection in which he is held, and of course to the staff of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation – but also now to the quality of the Scholars, who are the best ambassadors imaginable for the MRF.

On behalf of all the Rhodes Trustees, I offer warm congratulations for a further year of success, and best wishes for another to come.

A Review by the Chief Executive

INTRODUCTION
In 2008 The Mandela Rhodes Foundation marked its fifth year of operations, an anniversary fortuitously coinciding with the celebration of the 90th birthday of our Patron, Mr Mandela. These two factors alone would have made the year memorable, but as it turned out there were several other breakthrough developments that will have a profoundly positive effect on the doings of the Foundation for many years to come.

OVERVIEW
We had our largest-ever group of Mandela Rhodes Scholars ‘in residence’ in 2008, 30 in all, and the leadership development retreats and personalised mentoring programme – defining features of our flagship Scholarships programme – were again effectively implemented. The Foundation’s preserved endowment soared past the R100m mark in the year under review, up from R73m in December 2007 and R36m at the end of 2006.

Major new partnerships were concluded with The Leverhulme Trust, which will underwrite 10 Scholarships; Oxford University Press Southern Africa, which has taken on the MRF as a significant shareholder enjoying dividends that will fund a large number of Scholarships; Absa, which has underwritten three new Scholarships; The Hunter Foundation, two new Scholarships; and the Friends of the MRF USA and 46664, one new Scholarship each.

Thus the number of Mandela Rhodes Scholarships established on a sustainable basis continued to grow most encouragingly in the course of 2008. In addition to the new partners, and of course our founding partner The Rhodes Trust, the MRF continued to benefit from the extraordinary support given by the Nelson Mandela Legacy Trust UK, the government of Norway, and the other valued donors and friends listed on pages 59 and 60 in this Yearbook.

A stellar achievement in the year was the acquisition by the MRF Trust of the Bishopscourt property of our Patron, allowing it to be preserved and utilised as a leadership development facility in future. This was made possible by the generosity of the Friends of the MRF USA and a partnership with the Provincial Government of the Western Cape.

GROWTH OF THE MANDELA RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS PROGRAMME
The Scholarships programme is reported on in detail elsewhere (see especially pages 13–57), but the key growth statistics are:

Thus 94 Mandela Rhodes Scholarships had been awarded by the end of 2008. The ‘Class of 2010’, to be selected in October 2009, will take the Foundation well beyond the 100-Scholar mark. It is little wonder that the Scholars’ alumni association, the Community of Mandela Rhodes Scholars, though fledgling, is flourishing.
The quality and diversity of the Scholars remain remarkable, and the overall academic performance impressive. It was expected that by 2009, 47 Mandela Rhodes Scholars would have received their degrees, three would have their results pending, 39 would be in residence/still studying, and five would not complete the degrees for which they were registered under the programme.

State of the organisation
The Mandela Rhodes Foundation retains a small but effective staff complement. Governance standards are high, with focused oversight. The MRF continues to enjoy co-operation with the Mandela ‘sister organisations’, the Nelson Mandela Foundation and the Nelson Mandela Children’s Fund. We were very sorry to bid farewell to our General Manager, Steve Thobela, who took up a new opportunity in Johannesburg at the end of 2008, but have been fortunate to secure the services of Donovan Brinders in his stead.

Conclusion
The exceptional progress made in 2008, building on successive successful years before that, serves as a marvellous platform for the MRF in 2009 – which will be a particularly challenging year in terms of fundraising given the dramatically altered economic climate internationally. I thank sincerely our Chairman, Committees, Board of Trustees, donors and supporters, and my colleagues on the MRF staff for making it possible for us to continue to offer unique leadership development and educational opportunities to excellent, ethical future leaders of our continent – and to build so rapidly an institution of which Africa can be proud.

The Mandela Rhodes Foundation is a charitable trust with the registration number IT5164/2003. It is governed by an independent Board of Trustees in terms of a Notarial Deed of Trust. Trust information is contained in the Financial Results on pages 61–68 of this Yearbook. As at the end of the period under review, December 2008, the Board of Trustees was made up of the following members:

Professor GJ Gerwel
(Chairman)
Mandela Nominee

Jakes Gerwel was Director-General in President Mandela’s office. He holds leading positions in a range of companies, the HSRC and Rhodes University. He holds honorary professorships at UWC and the University of Pretoria. Professor Gerwel has been founding Chairman of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation since 2003.

The Rt Hon Lord Fellowes
GCB GCVO QSO
Rhodes Nominee

Robert Fellowes is currently Chairman of Barclays Private Banking in London, after serving the Queen in various secretarial roles for twenty-two years. He is a director of SABMiller and serves on several trusts and foundations. Lord Fellowes has been a founding Trustee of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation since 2003.

Sir Colin Lucas
Rhodes Nominee

Colin Lucas is the Rhodes Trust Secretary. He was Vice-Chancellor of Oxford University. He held senior positions at the Universities of Sheffield, Manchester and Chicago. He serves on higher education committees in China, Singapore, India, and Germany. He chairs the British Library and is a Mellon Foundation Trustee.

The Hon Mrs Phumzile Mlambo-Ngcuka
Mandela Nominee

Phumzile Mlambo-Ngcuka was elected a Member of Parliament in South Africa’s first democratic elections. She held senior African National Congress and government posts, including that of Deputy President of South Africa, the first woman to do so. She has been a founding Trustee of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation since 2003.

Justice Yvonne Mokgoro
Mandela Nominee

Yvonne Mokgoro is a Constitutional Court judge. She serves on many boards, University Councils, trusts and law bodies. She taught Law at South African, British, American and Dutch universities, and holds five honorary Professorships. Justice Mokgoro has been a founding Trustee of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation since 2003.

Professor Njabulo Ndebele
Mandela Nominee

Njabulo Ndebele was Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cape Town, and held high office at the Universities of the North, Witwatersrand, Lesotho, and Western Cape. An award-winning author, he has received several honorary doctorates and fellowships. Professor Ndebele has been a founding Trustee of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation since 2003.

Mr Julian Ogilvie Thompson
Rhodes Nominee

Julian Ogilvie Thompson recently retired as a Director of De Beers SA. A Rhodes Scholar, he joined Anglo American Corporation, and became Chairman of Minoro, of De Beers, of Anglo American Corporation, and of Anglo American plc on its formation. He was Vice Chair of The Urban Foundation and a Director of The National Business Initiative.

The Rt Hon Lord Waldegrave of North Hill
Rhodes Nominee

William Waldegrave is the Provost of Eton College. He was a Vice Chairman of UBS Investment Bank, and was formerly a senior Cabinet Minister in the UK. He was an MP for two decades. He is Chairman of the Rhodes Trust, the National Museum of Science and Industry, and has been a founding Trustee of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation since 2003.

Milestones of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation 2008

The year 2008 was the most active yet for The Mandela Rhodes Foundation, with major developments taking place and an unusual number of public events over and above the regular fixtures that annually dominate the Foundation’s calendar. Over the following pages these milestones of the MRF’s fifth anniversary year are presented in pictorial form, providing a chronological record of the moments that defined the year. The series of images begins with the first of the leadership retreats for the ‘Class of 2008’.

FIRST LEADERSHIP RETREAT

The 2008 Mandela Rhodes Scholars join MRF staff and facilitators at Mont Fleur, Stellenbosch, for their introductory retreat. Spanning almost a week, the retreat aims to induct the new Scholars into the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships leadership development programme before they begin their academic year. Scholars have the opportunity to get to know one another, and also to interact with representatives of the alumni network, the Community of Mandela Rhodes Scholars.

January 2008
MARCH 2008

Two regional retreats, focusing on one of the four pillars of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation – reconciliation – are convened. The first, in Port Elizabeth, caters for Scholars based in the Eastern and Western Cape, and the second takes place in Johannesburg, attended by Scholars from Gauteng, Limpopo, and KwaZulu-Natal. Pictured above are Scholars, MRF staff, CMRS representatives, mentors and retreat facilitators at the Port Elizabeth gathering.

MARCH 2008

The presentation of the newest cohort of Mandela Rhodes Scholars to Mr Mandela is, as has become a happy tradition for The Mandela Rhodes Foundation over the years, widely covered by both the printed and broadcast media. News about the ‘Class of 2008’ is disseminated across Africa and internationally, and several new Scholars are featured in personality profiles in their regions of origin. Enquiries about the Scholarship from those interested in applying immediately increases after the burst of publicity.
MARCH 2008

The 23 Mandela Rhodes Scholars selected for the year 2008 gather at Mandela House in Johannesburg, home of the MRF’s sister organisation the Nelson Mandela Foundation, to be introduced to the Patron for the first time. As always, Mr Mandela is particularly interested to hear about their origins and aspirations for the future – and to enjoin them to ensure that they use the extraordinary opportunity they have been given to help others less fortunate further their own education.

APRIL 2008

All members of the Board gather at Rhodes House for the seventh Trustees’ meeting. Meetings alternate each year between the headquarters of the founding partners: Rhodes House in Oxford, and the Mandela Rhodes Building in Cape Town. In Oxford in 2008 MRF attorney Jacques Louw, pictured at left above, is invited to make a presentation to the Board on the detail of the innovative partnership soon to be concluded between the Foundation and Oxford University Press Southern Africa.
Oxford University Press Visit

Ahead of the meeting of the Board of Trustees in Oxford, the MRF delegation is delighted to accept an invitation to a luncheon at Oxford University Press to celebrate the proposed partnership between the two organisations. Pictured above are: (Back row) Sir John Vickers, Sir Colin Lucas, Mr Julian Ogilvie Thompson, Dr Henry Reece, Lord Fellowes, Sir Peter North, Mr Neil Tomkins, Mr Andy Wigmore and Mr James Rogers. (Front row) Professor Jakes Gerwel, Ms Susan Froud, Professor Njabulo Ndebele, The Hon Tessa Ogilvie Thompson, Justice Yvonne Mokgoro, Mr Shaun Johnson, and Mr Jacques Louw.

Mandela Rhodes Roadshows

The Mandela Rhodes Foundation travels to different campuses each year to spread the message about the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships to potential candidates. Seven institutions are visited in 2008, across four provinces of South Africa: Cape Peninsula University of Technology; Vaal University of Technology; Mangosuthu University of Technology; Monash, University of Johannesburg; University of Limpopo; and the University of Venda. Pictured above, fourth from left, is Ms Mapula Ramethape of the University of Limpopo.

JULY 2008

The mid-year retreat is located at Qunu in the Eastern Cape, the ancestral area of the MRF’s Patron. In Mr Mandela’s 90th year, his Scholars are inspired to spend six days together close to the place of his birth. Pictured above overlooking the valleys near Qunu, are Victor Chikadzi; visiting Canadian Rhodes Scholar Olivier Jarda; Demaine Solomons; Mashilo Tshehla, and Lionel Faull.
The MRF is represented on the Board of the Nelson Mandela Foundation’s campaign vehicle, 46664, and participates in the organisation of a celebratory concert to mark Mr Mandela’s 90th birthday in Hyde Park, London. The concert and associated activities are a great success, and spread awareness about the work of the ‘family’ of charities founded by Madiba: the Nelson Mandela Foundation, the Nelson Mandela Children’s Fund, and The Mandela Rhodes Foundation. Mr Mandela is pictured above with those involved in the London concert.

A recording is made of Mandela Rhodes Scholars reciting extracts from the ‘Characteristics Sought in a Mandela Rhodes Scholar’, one of the key founding documents of the Foundation. Filmed at four venues around Cape Town, the short DVD is later shown at MRF functions, and is placed on the Foundation’s website. Pictured above during the shooting are Mandela Rhodes Scholars Garikai Nyaruwata (2008), Riaan Oppelt (2005), Judy Sikuza (2007), and Bronwyn Tarr (2008).
The Friends of the MRF USA, a voluntary organisation run by Rhodes Scholars in America and one of the Foundation’s most important supporters, helps to make it possible for the MRF Trust to acquire the Bishopscourt property. FoMRF President Mr Ian Glenday travels from Washington DC to represent the FoMRF at an event to mark Mr Mandela’s 90th birthday in the Western Cape, and to announce the Bishopscourt plans. Mr Glenday is pictured here with the MRF’s other Bishopscourt partner, Western Cape Premier Lynne Brown.

The Provincial Government of the Western Cape, represented by Premier Lynne Brown, brings the Bishopscourt project to fruition by announcing it will partner with the MRF and make a significant contribution in honour of Mr Mandela’s 90th birthday. Premier Brown is pictured above with the Patron of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation at the special event held at Bishopscourt.
At the Bishopscourt function, the London-based Leverhulme Trust is represented by its Director, Professor Sir Richard Brook, who announces that Leverhulme will establish 10 new Mandela Rhodes Scholarships – the largest single gift to the Foundation since it was brought into being with the founding benefaction of the Rhodes Trust. Professor Brook is pictured above chatting to Scholars after the Bishopscourt announcement. He is seen with (from left to right) Scholars Rumbidzai Goredema (2007), Tristan Görgens (2006), Vincent van Bever Donker (2006), and Leanne Johansson (2007).

The Community of Mandela Rhodes Scholars is increasingly active during the year, setting up organisational structures with the assistance of the MRF and the Friends of the MRF USA, electing new leaders and setting out a strategy plan. The CMRS takes advantage of the opportunity for all cohorts of Mandela Rhodes Scholars – 2005–2008 – to gather together for the first time at the Bishopscourt event. The Mandela Rhodes Scholars are pictured above in the gardens at Bishopscourt.
MRF-OUP Agreement

OUP Announcement

A senior delegation from Oxford University Press travels to Mandela House in Johannesburg to join the MRF Patron and Chairman, OUP Southern Africa executives, MRF staff and invited guests for an event to announce an innovative partnership which will significantly support the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships programme over many years. Mr Mandela is pictured above in the front row flanked by MRF Chairman Professor Jakes Gerwel, and Oxford University Vice-Chancellor Dr John Hood. Senior OUP representatives, with MRF General Manager Steve Thobela, are seen standing behind them.
Mandela Rhodes Place

The Cape Town central city precinct in which the Mandela Rhodes Building, headquarters of the MRF, stands is known as Mandela Rhodes Place, an increasingly popular multi-use development favoured by Capetonians. Owners and tenants of Mandela Rhodes Place decide they will support the work of the eponymous Mandela Rhodes Foundation by making voluntary monthly financial contributions to the MRF’s funds. Pictured at a dinner to celebrate the announcement are Mr Martin Kearns, Chief Executive of Eurocape, the Mayor of Cape Town, Helen Zille, and MRF Chairman, Professor Jakes Gerwel.

Fourth Leadership Retreat

The ‘Class of 2008’ Scholars return to Mont Fleur in the hills outside Stellenbosch for their completion retreat and to reflect on the Mandela Rhodes journey over the year. As the retreat draws to a close, there is time for some relaxation. Pictured above drumming out their messages are Garikai Nyaruwata, Bronwyn Tarr, Suntosh Pillay, Christopher McConnachie, and MRF staff member Robert McLeod.

SEPTEMBER 2008

SEPTEMBER 2008
SEPTEMBER 2008

The announcement of the MRF’s partnership with OUP sparks widespread interest and SABC TV invites the organisations to give a live in-depth interview. Pictured above in the Cape Town studios of the national broadcaster are MRF General Manager, Steve Thobela and OUUPSA Managing Director, Lieze Kotze. The coverage further raises awareness of the Foundation and its Scholarships programme.

NOVEMBER 2008

In addition to support for their academic studies and participation in the MRF’s leadership development programme, Mandela Rhodes Scholars benefit from having a mentor assigned to them during their time in residence. The mentors for 2008/9 gather at Gordon’s Bay near Cape Town to complete the mentorship programme for 2008 and to prepare for the coming year and a new cohort of Mandela Rhodes Scholars.
The Characteristics Sought in a Mandela Rhodes Scholar

Young African

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you dream of being a leader; a leader in whose blend of character and intellect Africa will take pride.

Aspire to this if you believe you have within you the moral force of character and instinct to lead; and understand that leadership is more than personal ambition, it is also service, requiring the will and capacity to inspire and develop fellow human beings to their own excellence;

Aspire to this if you believe that the advancement of individual and social fulfilment, human rights, dignity, the achievement of fundamental freedoms, is among the highest of callings;

Aspire to this if you believe that hard work is essential, and you esteem the performance of public duties to be among the noblest of aims.

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you understand education to be both a gift and a tool for the advancement of human development, to the benefit of all.

Aspire to this if you value and pursue scholastic attainment, but understand that intellectual excellence is not to be seen in isolation from other qualities of character; that leaders require a roundedness of personality;

Aspire to this if you believe that in receiving an exceptional education, an individual embraces a responsibility to foster such opportunities for others;

Aspire to this if you believe that your own success might also make a difference to others.

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you believe in an entrepreneurial spirit to allow Africa to take with dignity its rightful place as an equal and competitive presence in the global world.

Aspire to this if you have the vigour to pursue this aim with integrity; and the energy to use your talents to the full, as exemplified by a fondness for and success in team pursuits beyond the confines of your professional career;

Aspire to this if you believe that individual human effort, innovation and creativity will lead to the betterment of society and an effective contribution to the world;

Aspire to this if you value and pursue scholastic attainment, but understand that intellectual excellence is not to be seen in isolation from other qualities of character; that leaders require a roundedness of personality;

Aspire to this if you believe in reconciliation, freedom, peace and prosperity among all human beings, who should share equal citizenship and opportunities in this world.

Aspire to this if you believe in being part of creating a humane world in which all individuals and cultures enjoy equal respect; a world whose emergence will say a new order is born in which we are all each other’s keepers;

Aspire to this if you value truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship;

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you believe that the past, in all its imperfection, should be harnessed to benefit the present and the future.

The Trustees of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation
Cape Town, South Africa, 2005
It remains the aim of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation to build Africa’s most prestigious, aspired-after, and effective scholarships at tertiary level. Mandela Rhodes Scholarships are tenable at qualified South African institutions of higher learning, offering unique educational, mentorship and leadership training opportunities to talented young Africans who display the potential evoked in the document "Characteristics Sought in a Mandela Rhodes Scholar", on page 24 of this Yearbook. The other founding documents which underpin the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships programme, including the Terms and Conditions of the Scholarship, are available from the Foundation.

The Mandela Rhodes Scholarships programme is further distinguished by a rigorous nomination and selection system, which occurs over several months of each year, culminating in the selection of the cohort of Scholars for the following academic year.

The fourth Mandela Rhodes Scholarships selection committee, charged with choosing 28 Scholars from a high-quality shortlist of 40 (itself drawn from a record 122 nominations), gathered in Cape Town on 3 – 5 October 2008. Professor Jakes Gerwel, Chairman of the Foundation, was in the Chair once more, joined on the panel by Mandela Rhodes staffers Mr Shaun Johnson and Professor Rejoice Ngcongo. The remaining four selectors’ seats were occupied by eminent individuals independent of the Foundation.
Matthew Beetar

University of KwaZulu-Natal, Pietermaritzburg
BScSc (Hon): Media & Cultural & Gender Studies

Matthew was born on 17 January 1987 in Pietermaritzburg, South Africa. He has consistently excelled academically, held student leadership positions and been a gender activist throughout his academic career. The recipient of numerous scholarships and academic awards, he is a member of the Golden Key International Honours Society. An able debater, dancer and musician, he has also been a member of the Natal Youth Wind Band. Matthew’s community work includes debating coaching and charity theatre. His Masters in English & Gender focuses on issues of identity, youth, whiteness, sexuality, masculinity and cosmopolitanism.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

The Scholarship afforded me the most amazing year of my life thus far. This community helped me grow and develop on a deeply personal level, to the point that I only dreamed of one day reaching. It has been about achieving the seemingly impossible: uniting individuals under a common banner without losing a sense of difference, uniqueness and personal prioritising. The Scholarship has been a journey of genuine love and acceptance.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

If my year as a Scholar taught me anything it’s that the people you meet ignite dormant, unexplored passions. And so my future is uncertain, but I know that whatever I do I am dedicated to changing perceptions of gender identity through using the cultural artefacts of our time. I envision a new regime of communication and education.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

What trumps even meeting our Patron is the raw love I felt from day one radiating from my cohort, the MRF and the Community of Mandela Rhodes Scholars. My highlight was definitely the sincere bonding I did with so many people – through sauna nights, ‘mafia’ games and the Decades Party of the first CMRS AGM!
Feedback from the Mandela Rhodes Scholars of 2008

Anton Botha
Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University, Port Elizabeth
MCom: Industrial Psychology

Anton was born on 10 September 1981 in Tshwane (Pretoria), South Africa. He has excelled academically, received numerous academic awards and held student leadership positions throughout his academic career. He is a member of the Golden Key Honours Society. A keen archer, hiker and squash player he has also achieved provincial colours for shooting. Anton has supported teachers on a mathematics literacy outreach programme. Last year he was invited to participate in a reconciliation initiative in three countries on three continents. This year he completes his Masters and hopes to present two papers at two international conferences in China.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

It is sometimes difficult to maintain faith in humanity as wars, hate, violence, bigotry, racism, lack of integrity all pervade our social fabric. This scholarship has shown me that there is hope; there are people that have the capacity and passion to transform for the better the world we live in. This in turn has given me faith in myself and my abilities to enact change on this continent.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I see my purpose as an African leader not in the conventional sense, but as one seeking to emancipate and empower others’ minds to live up to Africa’s potential. Only sheep need a shepherd; people need the tools, mental or otherwise, to lead themselves. However the kind of leader I dream of being does not require, nor does it want followers; it desires equal partners in the enactment of a common vision.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

If pressed to mention one it would be my fellow Scholars. Nowhere have I come across a group of people that I hold in such high regard; not only for their intelligence, knowledge, curiosity and impressive achievements but also for their humbleness, humanity and heart. Meeting and interacting with them and the MRF staff will surely continue to be one of the greatest privileges of my life. Every experience with these wonderful individuals left me filled with hope for the future of this continent.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

More than twice I doubted to apply for the Scholarship, but after reading the characteristics sought in a Mandela Rhodes Scholar, my every nerve was thrilled. This is no ordinary Scholarship; it is about laying the foundations upon which a better tomorrow will be made possible. Not getting it would have crushed me.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I am not so certain of what the future holds, but I know who holds the future. God will place me where He needs me most. There is however an arena in which the fury of battle thrills my every nerve, where I can give my all but that I dare not express now. Guaranteed I am thinking big.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Being among such a diverse group of humble, honest and intelligent Scholars will always be cherished.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

Being a Mandela Rhodes Scholar has given me a voice that says: ‘Enkosi Kakhulu, truly all things are possible if I believe. I have learnt servant leadership and have been gifted with the gift of education, while growing closer to being the change I want to see in the world.’

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I plan on taking a road trip to Kenya in 2009 as preparation for the many projects I would like to pursue in Africa. I hope to be the eye that will lead others to seeing the beauty that lies in our continent. I am currently working towards completing my Masters Degree.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Time spent in Qunu is my highlight of being a Scholar. I insisted on making a solar power cooker on the show I present on SABC television and hope that thousands of people will try a greener option for cooking. I have also written a few proposals for community development using solar power cookers. I learnt that I may have compassion like Mother Theresa and entrepreneurship like Richard Branson while following my dreams and being true to myself.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

The Scholarship has taught me to look beyond what I can make out of the opportunities I have been given in life, and to focus on how I can harness these opportunities to make a difference in other people’s lives.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I see myself working hand-in-hand with like-minded people to develop journalism skills in Africa, so that the two biggest things that hamper our development can be overturned: one, institutionalised corruption; and two, our unwillingness to wholeheartedly celebrate our successes.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

The biggest highlights have been the way in which I grew as a person and as a leader over the year, and the way that the Scholarship programme was set up to enable me to see myself change and grow. And, of course, the hitherto unknown fact that it is possible to cram 12 Scholars into a 4-man sauna for a 3-hour steaming session at 2 o’clock in the morning!
Thandeka Hlengwa

University of Zululand, Empangeni, KwaZulu-Natal
MA: Clinical Psychology

Thandeka was born on 9 December 1985 in Germiston, South Africa. She has obtained several distinctions during her academic career and has been a strong leader in her church and on the University of Zululand campus. Thandeka is eager to empower women and the poor, and has, among other things, assisted young abused girls to deal with their challenges. She is currently completing her internship at Sterkfontein Hospital in Krugersdorp.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

The MRF has been a family of diverse, intelligent, warm and loving people whom I have had the privilege to meet. It has been a platform where I have received unconditional acceptance, been challenged and encouraged to grow as a person. This experience has given me the liberty and confidence to dream big for myself and others.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

My passion lies in the empowerment of females in rural areas and in townships. I have experienced the beauty of being groomed by confident, liberated and mentally healthy women and I would love other people to be afforded with that opportunity. I am also interested in utilising my leadership and academic skills within the Christian church.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Being able to tell people that I had lunch with Mr Mandela and simultaneously observing the look of disbelief in their faces has been quite a thrill! I thoroughly enjoyed visiting Qunu (even though it was freezing) as I felt that one was able to connect with Mandela the person and not the public façade. My most memorable moments were having late night talks with other Scholars, and laughing over silly jokes.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

The Scholarship has introduced me to a plethora of inspiring and inspired people. This must be the most valuable aspect of being part of the MRF, i.e. the people you meet, the bonds you form with them and learning to love. The Foundation has inspired me to be a positive influence in South Africa and Africa.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I have come to see my role in Africa as one of broadening and enhancing the capabilities and spread of the film and entertainment industries on our continent. This would include establishing a company dedicated to financially supporting uplifting narrative films in Africa.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Learning about the possibilities for social entrepreneurship in (South) Africa, meeting inspiring friends and playing ‘mafia’.

Llewellyn Howes

AFDA, Johannesburg
BA (Hon): Motion Picture Medium –

Llewellyn was born on 14 January 1980 in Roodepoort, South Africa. A keen sportsman, he obtained provincial colours for wrestling and basketball while at school. He received the Vice-Chancellor’s Medal at Pretoria University, and was awarded academic honours for his undergraduate degree, as well as for his Theology Masters and his MA in Antique Language and Culture Studies, all cum laude. He has held church youth and student leadership positions, and has achieved distinctions in art, music, theatre and film-making. Llewellyn has shown his social concern through leading holiday camps, building homes in Mozambique and undertaking pastoral care in depressed communities.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

This Scholarship has reignited within me the knowledge of the potential for change that I knew I possessed. It has been both an honour and a privilege to be chosen to partner with an amazing group of individuals of African descent in the MRF’s quest for exceptional African leadership in Africa. It hasn’t all been easy but I’ve been encouraged to be more purposeful in my life, as I lead myself and others. I’ve been reminded that to develop the Africa and its people that I hope for, I need to take personal risks.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I may not know where life may lead me in the future but Africa’s development will always be part of my personal development.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Memorable moments that will be etched in my memory as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar will be the late night musings on current affairs over glasses of wine in the sauna and Qunu! There’s something in the air at Qunu ... it’s indescribable. I’ll probably never have that with the MRFers from 2009 but everything just came together for me there ... An unshakeable resolve of purpose!

Simangele Mabena
University of the Witwaterstrand, Johannesburg
MA Dramatic Arts: Applied Theatre

Simangele was born on 14 January 1983 in Johannesburg, South Africa. She excelled academically and was a Golden Key International Honour Society member. Simangele has been very active in her campus Christian society and has been of service as a DEAFSA interpreter, a special needs youth worker in Vancouver and a tutor to deaf students at a Soweto high school. She is currently working as a company manager of a dance company and project manager of a Saturday arts academy. Simangele communicates in English, Afrikaans, seSotho and South African Sign Language.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

To my inquisitive mind the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship has been an empowering opportunity through learning theoretically and practically. I believe in empowerment as a key to self-actualisation, greater creativity and innovation, and greater productivity. Moreover, the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship has been the cornerstone for founding ethical leadership.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

Truly, the world is a stage where one has to play one’s roles. I find Africa as my stage where I have to play my roles. My roles will be responsive to the specific needs around me. However, currently I have a passion to contribute to the emancipation and development of young people and towards mitigating the prevalence of infectious diseases.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Almost every moment was a highlight. But the most important highlights were when I met our Patron Mr Mandela and when I visited Qunu, his birthplace. It was, different and delightful to share the space and aura for that short moment with Mr Mandela. While at Qunu it was encouraging to observe the humble beginning that the great Madiba had.

Lawrence Mashimbye

University of the Witwaterstrand, Johannesburg
MSc: Epidemiology and Biostatistics

Lawrence was born on 4 September 1984 in Giyani, South Africa. He has excelled academically and has held Christian and medical student leadership positions throughout his academic career. He is a keen volleyball player. Lawrence is committed to the village where he was born and has involved himself at community level there in many ways. Lawrence speaks Xitsonga, English, Afrikaans, Sepedi and isiZulu.
Christopher McConnachie

Rhodes University, Grahamstown
LLB (Hon): Law

Christopher was born on 13 August 1986 in East London, South Africa. He has excelled academically, receiving several scholarships and numerous awards including an appearance on the Dean’s list, academic half-colours, a Golden Key award and the top law student prize. He was a delegate at the 2007 Brightest Young Minds conference and as an exceptional debater has consistently won awards here and internationally, as well as promoting debating at many levels. Christopher is an active SRC member and has led or founded many outreach initiatives, including the development of debating in rural and township schools.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

Being a Mandela Rhodes Scholar has allowed me to feel part of something so much bigger. I’ve become a part of a unique group of some of the most motivated and inspiring people on the planet and a part of a unique vision for developing leadership in Africa. It has given me a sense of purpose and optimism so powerful that no challenge seems impossible.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

My ambition is to use the law as a tool for advancing important social causes. South Africa’s new constitutional dispensation shows that the law can be a powerful means of giving recognition and recourse to the vulnerable and disenfranchised. I hope that I can play a part in these efforts to make our society more just and equitable.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Every moment spent with the Scholars and the MRF staff has been a highlight. It has been an absolute honour to be in the company of such incredible human beings whose commitment and drive is simply infectious. Not even the most ardent Afro-pessimist could leave a Mandela Rhodes gathering without feeling a powerful sense of hope about this continent’s future.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

The Mandela Rhodes Scholarship has meant the reconciliation of my own talents, aspirations and passion with reality. It has meant me locating where I fit in the bigger picture and more importantly, seeing in order to believe that there are others, like myself, who believe in Africa and who will strive with integrity to help build this continent, in the many disciplines that they represent.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I see myself very much involved in the rebuilding of Zimbabwe. My passion for the social sciences and for writing would find its place in facilitating transparency in institutions and exposing the plight of the vulnerable people.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

The main highlight for me has been meeting former President Mandela. What I took from it is that we should not fear greatness because greatness lies within. It is by the humble fulfilment of our purpose that we become great. I must mention however that every meeting with the other Scholars was a highlight for me because we always created a space in which anything was possible.
Cynthia Mutabaazi

University of Pretoria, Pretoria
MA: Culture and Media Studies

Cynthia was born on 2 March 1981 in Kampala, Uganda. She has been a writer and held leadership positions since her school-days. In South Africa she has thrown herself into church leadership on and off campus. Cynthia was hand-picked for a research project in her department after her first postgraduate degree. She is currently a junior lecturer in her department and is writing articles on xenophobia and South African media, and on the socio-political commentator Oliver Mtukudzi. Cynthia is passionate about being an agent for good in her world.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

It has meant an increased understanding of leadership contexts – with my family, friends, school, Christian/church context and my home country, Uganda. The MRF principles were chosen to celebrate, encourage and even nurture exceptional leadership. I have learned that such leadership is really about being nothing other than my inherently valuable self – using what I have and what I am to uplift those that I encounter.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I would like to be part of a force that effects a positive change to the dire conditions of the people in Uganda (especially city youth and rural people). My determination is driven by a passion for all humanity; and I hope to be a part of bringing socio-political and economic improvement in Uganda, East Africa and Africa as a continent. I recognise my life as a gift meant not just for me but for greater humanity.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

First, meeting Mr Mandela – he carries with him an undeniable presence and a humble spirit. Second, the workshops with all the Scholars. My journey was one of healing and of a path that refreshed my dreams.
Lindokuhle Nkosi

University of Zululand, KwaZulu-Natal
MSoSc: Sociology

Lindokuhle was born on 28 June 1986 in Boschfontein, South Africa. She excelled in her university degrees, receiving numerous scholarships. Active on campus through a variety of leadership positions, Lindokuhle was particularly involved in church, youth, women and community development projects. She speaks English, Xitsonga, isiZulu and siSwati.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

I just find myself running wordless when I have to explain what the Scholarship means to me because it just became all that I needed. It didn’t only equip me educationally but it also went an extra mile and contributed in helping me to be socially relevant in many ways, for example: be entrepreneurial and promote reconciliation.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

The role that I foresee myself playing in Africa is not something that is unreachable. The only thing I have to do is to apply the knowledge I attain every day, use my experiences, my talents, potentials, abilities and the available resources for the benefit of our continent.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

The most exciting moment for me as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar was on the 4th of March 2008 when we were introduced to our Patron, Madiba. That moment of just sitting next to him and having those few minutes chatting with him was one of the moments that will last forever. Other highlights were meeting other Scholars from outside South Africa, and the royal treatment we received from the MRF and its staff members.
Garikai Nyaruwata

University of Cape Town, Cape Town
BBusSc (Hon): Economics

Garikai was born on 16 January 1987 in Harare, Zimbabwe. He has received numerous academic and leadership awards. An all-round achiever, he is active in rugby and judo, held executive leadership roles in Shawco and founded organisations promoting entrepreneurship, computer literacy and debating. He has been awarded a Rhodes Scholarship to read an MSc: Economics and an MSc: Financial Economics at Oxford from October 2009. Currently he lectures Contemporary Political Philosophy and is a Research Assistant at the Southern Africa Labour and Development Research Unit. He speaks Shona, English and isiZulu.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

My year in residence as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar has proved a watershed in my life. Having had an academically and extra-murally intense undergraduate experience, the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship programme gave me a much-needed opportunity to reflect on the value of my engagements. Through the one-on-one mentoring, leadership workshops and support from other Scholars I was able to gain a renewed perspective on the impact that I could have on this continent.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I was constantly enthralled by the emotional and intellectual depth of my interactions with Scholars and have no doubt that the genuine friendships that the programme ignited will play a pivotal role in my contribution to Africa.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

The year was crammed full with highlights: from meeting the personification of the Scholarship’s principles, Nelson Mandela himself; to late nights spent playing ‘mafia’; and sharing in the rich tapestry of life experience that constitutes the MRF community. I will always cherish the opportunity afforded to me to gain a greater appreciation of the values that such a diverse group of Africans can have in common.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

The Scholarship has refined my leadership journey and has continued to enhance my development of laudable principles and goals. It has also meant the redefining of appropriate leadership principles that are central to the empowerment and emancipation of African people.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I embrace the vision of peace and prosperity in the 21st century on the continent of Africa. Therefore I see my purpose to be the empowerment of the African people at large and to work on the numerous challenges facing our continent through increasing the capacity of people to think and work on a global and intercultural basis. I see myself as a future female leader who will foster economic development that will assist in rejuvenating and revitalising the mindsets of the African people.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

The highlights of the Scholarship have been meeting our Patron and working with the rest of the Scholarship team which re-established a great sense of humility in me.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

It’s been a mind-boggling, heartwarming, body-tingling experience! A Scholarship programme that cares about my emotional wellbeing – amazing! Socrates said that the unexamined life is not worth living. This truth shone brightly each time I encountered the Mandela Rhodes family. In the story of my life, 2008 will go down as the year I truly and completely believed that I am a young African leader capable of anything, as long as I reflect mindfully throughout my adventure.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

My role is simple yet daring: With humility, aspire to be the best that I can be.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Where do I begin? I have seen the best of Africa, a model for the world. I saw humanity at a glorious hour – playful, critical, practical, imaginative and ethical – and through this I have become a better human being. New friendships in Stellenbosch; meeting Madiba in Jo’burg; solar cooking in Qunu; partying in Cape Town; and being mentored in ‘Martzburg. This was a uniquely transformative experience. Respect, integrity, and ‘unity among diversity’ are not just words; they are alive and well, dancing on our continent.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

I feel very privileged and I draw inspiration from carrying the title Mandela Rhodes Scholar. Cecil John Rhodes and Nelson Mandela are leaders that will forever be remembered in history for the high quality of leadership that they both displayed in their different contexts. The Scholarship has not only afforded me the opportunity to further my studies, but has given me the opportunity to understand what leadership with integrity is. Through the Scholarship staff, the mentors and fellow Scholars, I have gained a deeper understanding of my leadership abilities and how I can further develop these for my and others’ benefit.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I see my role in Africa as being involved in research and development of medicines that are relevant to Africa at a cost that Africa can afford. I would like to see Africa self-reliant in providing health for its people.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

I was truly blessed to meet with so many talented African young people. I have enjoyed learning from my fellow Scholars and I have drawn inspiration from each one of them.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

In short, it has brought out nothing but the best in me. I will be eternally grateful to everyone involved in this programme for what they have done for me and who they have come to mean to me. The people I met inspired me by their selflessness and true love for others, to be more than I ever thought I could be. I learned that one’s true goal in life should not be to reach for the stars, but instead to reach for others.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

My dream for my future is to utilise the blessing of being part of the South African Reserve Bank to lead both South Africa and Africa into a brighter economic future, in order to better the lives of all who reside therein.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Highlights? Of course holding the hand of Tata Mandela is something that I will remember for the rest of my life! But other than that, there are no highlights to speak of – the whole experience was a high! From the enjoyable evenings with both Scholars and mentors, to the privilege of having a part of someone’s soul laid bare for me to protect and cherish.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

The Mandela Rhodes Scholarship played a significant role in my life journey. The Scholarship went beyond just paying my fees; it reinforced my passion for Africa and its people. I am humbled for being given the opportunity to have met such extraordinary people and am honoured to be part of a legacy that embraces exceptional leadership.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

The Scholarship gave me a new-found hope and optimism for what lies ahead. I am not sure what my role is and will be, but I do know that I have a responsibility to contribute to the further development of Africa by using my acquired knowledge and experiences. I take with me the principles and lessons learnt and will utilise these in all that I do.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

So many... Our first workshop in Stellenbosch, going to Qunu, the many nights of playing ‘mafia’, late night conversations with Scholars, meeting with my mentors and of course meeting Madiba. The entire year was such an enriching experience for which I will forever be grateful!

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

It’s hardly possible to concretise the continuous formational richness attained in and from my experience as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar. As a human being fortunate enough to partake in this journey it will forever be remembered as the exodus of an event that continues to reconstruct the essence of my being for the better.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

It is my conviction that the ecclesiological movement has been called to move beyond shallow religiosity into a sphere and mindset that celebrates and embraces human diversity in a post-modern world. As a Christian I envision myself contributing to development of this realisation in Africa and beyond.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

As human beings, we seldom encounter those willing enough to sacrifice their being for the sake of others. The Mandela Rhodes Foundation employees – those working tirelessly to realise the vision of our Patron – have invigorated me with a renewed sense of hope. Their commitment and willingness to partake in this journey is the embodiment of self-sacrifice; that rare essence of being which continues to inspire me and surely many others. I remain humbled by you and by those whom I was fortunate enough to meet in and through this journey.
What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

Through support offered by fellow Scholars and the Foundation staff, I started an important personal journey. I’ve been inspired and encouraged to harness my passions and skills for my contribution to this beautiful continent.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

Southern Africa specifically contains some of the last remaining natural ecosystems in the world. With my passions for the natural sciences, the arts and education, I aim to explore creative ways to excite curiosity about the world around us and to enhance awareness of humankind’s increasingly complex relationship with our natural surroundings and the essential resources they provide. Ultimately I hope to cultivate in fellow Africans an understanding of the relevant difference that each human being can make in the greater scheme of things.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Through the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship I feel privileged to have interacted with a phenomenal group of inspired, dedicated and diverse individuals who are committed to unleashing their creative resources for the growth of Africa. In the presence of this shared vision, I have had the opportunity to develop friendships and connections like no other. From deep mid-night discussions, ‘sardined sauna’ hilarity and endless sessions of ‘mafia’, these personal relationships are undoubtedly a highlight.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

It gave me the opportunity to dream bigger and to become more pragmatic about things. I grew up in a township with seemingly insignificant dreams; the Scholarship allowed me to meet people, see places and achieve goals that will last me a lifetime. Through the Scholarship, I have grown and formally decided that I am going to impact, lead and influence the world. Seriously!

How do you see your future role in Africa?

I am an African leader without question and that is what I will continue doing – lead in every context I engage with. Long gone are the days where Africa stands as a cripple asking for hand-outs. I would like to dedicate my life to helping people realise that they are unique beings with potential to change and empower others and themselves.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

Two words: Meeting Mandela.

Mashilo was born on 4 January 1981 in Ga-Sekhukune, South Africa. He completed his rural secondary schooling and took a diploma in Human Resources Management, a field in which he later went on to obtain a University of Venda degree. Mashilo has been a student leader since chairing his SRC at school and is now an active committee member of his branch of the ANC Youth League. He speaks Sepedi, Tshivenda, English, XiTsonga, isiZulu and Afrikaans.

What has the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship meant to you?

It has been a stepping stone to my future, opening the doors of reality and putting me in order for the future. I found the Foundation very supportive in my quest to accomplish my dream. My Scholarship time is a period to be commemorated through my entire life.

How do you see your future role in Africa?

Africa needs me and I need Africa as well. I have the responsibility to take a lead in creating a peaceful Africa, and to assist other youth to step off the beaten path and regard themselves as useful tools in society. The synergy in the MRF has spilled over to me and rekindled my energy to step up on my feet.

What have been the highlights for you as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar?

When problems deteriorate and the world seems to be large, there is always an alternative next to you. The most important highlight is that alone I cannot change the world, but working with others the process of shaping the world will be accomplished, and peace will envelop our country, the continent and the entire world.

The Mandela Rhodes Foundation awarded 28 new Mandela Rhodes Scholarships for 2009, continuing the growth trajectory in Scholar numbers: up from 8 for 2005, 15 for 2006, 20 for 2007 and 23 in 2008. The Scholarships programme has since its inception met the targets set out in the expansion plan approved by the Board of Trustees. This plan is reviewed annually by the Board to take account of any changes in the fundraising environment, and the number of Scholarships for the following year is determined on this basis. While an increase of Scholars per year is still envisaged, in light of the global economic crisis this has needed revision toward a more conservative number going forward.

The Foundation records annual data from the selection process (which runs over seven months, from the initial nationwide call for nominations and roadshows, through institutional nominations and short-listing of these, to final interviews and selection), and analyses trends. The statistics for 2008 again show an encouraging pattern of general representivity. It is to be borne in mind that no ‘quotas’ are applied – suitably qualified candidates compete on merit alone.

Below we present the statistics for 2008, for comparison with those of 2007.

57 • Mandela Rhodes Foundation 2008
The Friends of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation (USA)

A Message from the FoMRF

In honour of Mr Mandela, the Friends of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation (USA) and all its many donors were proud to mark the fifth year of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation with a grant by the Friends of its first endowed Mandela Rhodes Scholarship, to be awarded in 2009. We acknowledge with gratitude all our supporters who helped make this grant possible by giving generously during the campaign celebrating Mr Mandela’s 90th birthday in 2008.

On 20 August, 2008, following Mr Mandela’s 90th birthday celebrations, a unique facility for the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships was inaugurated in Cape Town. The Bishopscourt facility will host various leadership activities of the Mandela Rhodes Scholars, and is already serving as the base for the annual interviews conducted by the Selection Committee. A $1.5 million grant from the Friends of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation supported the establishment and operation of this project.

The Friends of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation has also supported the following projects in previous years:

- In 2006, a grant in the amount of $118 000 was awarded to the Mandela Rhodes Foundation’s Scholarships programme in South Africa.
- In 2007, a grant in the amount of $35 000 was awarded to The Mandela Rhodes Foundation to help in the establishment of the Community of Mandela Rhodes Scholars (CMRS – the alumni network for the Mandela Rhodes Scholars).
- Recently The Friends made a follow-up grant of $12 000 to continue the support of CMRS operations. The ability of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation to maintain active involvement and contributions from Mandela Rhodes Scholars once they graduate is a crucial element of the success of the leadership-building undertaking.

We wish all at The Mandela Rhodes Foundation, and all the Mandela Rhodes Scholars, every success in the continuing endeavours in this important work for Africa.

The Friends of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation (USA) can be contacted through the website www.fomrf.org. Donations can also be made via PayPal.

A Message from the Leverhulme Trust

‘Find young people of high talent, encourage the development of their abilities, and instil in them a sense of responsibility towards their fellow beings; this is the surest way to guarantee the strength and well-being of the wider community.’

This was a central belief of William Lever throughout his life. How fitting therefore that the Leverhulme Trust, established as part of his legacy, has now the opportunity to share in the work of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation.

The aspirations of the Foundation and the Trust are in the happiest of resonance; the target itself remains as crucial and challenging as it ever was. We can be confident that it will remain so.

Professor Sir Richard Brook
Director
The Leverhulme Trust
United Kingdom

A Message from Oxford University Press SA

It is a great privilege for Oxford University Press and in particular, Oxford University Press Southern Africa, to be associated with The Mandela Rhodes Foundation. As a department of Oxford University, with its close association with the Rhodes Trust and Scholarships and our continued involvement with the funding of the Clarendon Scholarships, The Mandela Rhodes Foundation partnership is an extension of the Press’s vision to further education, research and scholarship around the world.

OUP is committed to transformation and empowerment in South Africa and we believe that our innovative partnership with the MRF goes right to the heart of the spirit of transformation by investing in people who will be the future leaders of our country to create an even better South Africa. We are proud to be able to play a role in such a fundamental way.

Liese Kotze
Managing Director
OUP Southern Africa
South Africa

A Message from Absa

Through its work across many rural and disadvantaged communities in South Africa, the Absa Foundation aims to be the preferred partner in growing South Africa’s prosperity and contributing to nation-building. It is therefore a privilege for the Barclays/Absa family to be in partnership with The Mandela Rhodes Foundation to build exceptional leadership capacity in Africa. To The Mandela Rhodes Foundation we say this is a journey of a million steps and we look forward to contributing toward promoting the principles of leadership, education, entrepreneurship and reconciliation.

A Message from the Hunter Foundation

Leadership is the key to Africa’s future and this programme plays a crucial role in developing the leaders of tomorrow from Africa for Africa. Anyone serious about supporting leadership in Africa should take a very hard look at funding this scholarship programme. Once more Madiba and his dedicated team are leading the way for Africa’s successful future.

Sir Tom Hunter
Chairman

How to Donate

The Mandela Rhodes Foundation welcomes donations from those who would like to support its work, according to their means. Please see the MRF’s full contact details on the inside back cover of this Yearbook for guidance on how to get in direct touch with the Foundation. Any enquiries about donating, for example on the tax-exempt status of the Foundation Trust, or gifts to be made from other countries, are welcomed and we ask you to make direct contact with our General Manager Donovan Brinders, either through the general contacts of the MRF or at e-mail address: donovan@mandelarhodes.org.za

For those wishing to make donations of amounts not in excess of 10 000 South African Rands (or the equivalent amount in other currencies), it is possible to make a direct deposit for the benefit of the Foundation as per the following bank account details:

This is an abridged version of the financial statements for the 12 months ended in December 2008, audited by PricewaterhouseCoopers. Full statements are available from The Mandela Rhodes Foundation on request. Financial statements for 2008 have been available since March 2009.
Statement of Trustees’ Responsibility

The Trustees are responsible for the maintenance of adequate accounting records and the preparation and integrity of the financial statements and the related information. The auditors are responsible for reporting on the fair presentation of the financial statements. The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with South African Statements of Generally Accepted Accounting Practice.

The Trustees are also responsible for the Foundation’s system of internal financial control. These controls are designed to provide reasonable, but not absolute, assurance as to the reliability of the financial statements, and to adequately safeguard, verify and maintain accountability of assets, and to prevent and detect misstatement and loss. Nothing has come to the attention of the Trustees to indicate that any material breakdown in the functioning of these controls, procedures and system has occurred during the year under review.

The Trustees are responsible for the preparation, integrity and fair presentation of the financial statements of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust. The financial statements presented on pages 66 to 68 have been prepared in accordance with South African Statements of Generally Accepted Accounting practice, and include amounts based on judgements and estimates made by management.

The financial statements have been prepared on the going concern basis, since the Trustees have every reason to believe that the Foundation has adequate resources in place to continue in operation for the foreseeable future.

The independent auditing firm PricewaterhouseCoopers Inc., which was given unrestricted access to all financial records and related data, including minutes of all meetings of members, has audited the annual financial statements. The Trustees believe that all representations made to the independent auditors during their audit were valid and appropriate. PricewaterhouseCoopers Inc.’s audit report is presented in the independent auditors’ report.

The financial statements were approved on 27 March 2009 by the Trustees.

[Signatures]
The summarised financial statements of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust set out on pages 65 to 68 have been derived from the annual financial statements, prepared in accordance with South African Statements of Generally Accepted Accounting Practice, of the Trust for the year ended 31 December 2008. We have audited the annual financial statements in accordance with statements of International Standards on Auditing. In our report dated 15 May 2009, we expressed an opinion that the financial statements, from which the summarised financial statements were derived, were fairly presented, in all material respects, except that, as in common with similar organisations, it is not feasible for the organisation to institute accounting controls over cash collections from donations prior to the initial entry of the collections in the accounting records. Accordingly, it was impracticable for us to extend our examination beyond the receipts actually recorded.

Audit opinion
In our opinion, the accompanying summarised financial statements are consistent, in all material respects, with the annual financial statements from which they were derived and on which we expressed a qualified opinion as referred to in the preceding paragraph.

For a better understanding of the scope of our audit and Trust’s financial position, the results of its operations and cash flows for the period, the summarised financial statements should be read in conjunction with our audit report included in the annual financial statements from which the summarised financial statements were derived.

1. Nature of activities
The Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust was established on 9 June 2002 as a joint initiative between Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela and the Rhodes Trustees (hereinafter jointly referred to as ‘the Founders’).
The Founders wish to contribute to the development of exceptional leadership capacity in Africa. This objective shall be advanced through the development and implementation of the various Mandela Rhodes Programmes more fully described in the Strategy Plan approved by the Trustees in February 2004.
In line with the strategic growth plan referred to above, the number of the Mandela Rhodes elected annually has grown as follows: 8 in 2005; 15 in 2006; 20 in 2007; 23 in 2008 and 28 in 2009. In addition to the annually selected Scholars, the Foundation funds Scholars who are on a Masters programme and their Scholarships are carried over from the previous year. Costs have therefore increased in line with the strategic growth plan approved by the Trustees and reviewed annually.
