From the original strategy plan of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation

‘The central purpose of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation is to build exceptional leadership capacity in Africa through its programmes.’

‘The Mandela Rhodes programmes will develop individual human skills across African society, to help the continent achieve success and prosperity, and full participation in the global world.’

‘The Mandela Rhodes programmes will be unique, measurable, sustainable and economically efficient.’
A MANDELA RHODES SCHOLARSHIP is much more than a bursary. The Mandela Rhodes Scholarships are the flagship programme of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation, a partnership between the late Mr Nelson Mandela and the Rhodes Trust, brought into being in 2003. A Scholarship constitutes a leadership development opportunity we believe to be unique on the African continent. Though the costs of Scholars are generously covered during their period of study, of equal importance are the leadership development components attached to the Scholarships programme.

Young Africans who show academic prowess as well as broader leadership potential are elected to Mandela Rhodes Scholarships after a rigorous nomination and selection process. They are given the opportunity to complete a postgraduate degree at Honours or Masters level (or their equivalents), while simultaneously participating in a customised leadership development programme devised for each Class.

On page 7 of this Yearbook we set out The Characteristics Sought in a Mandela Rhodes Scholar, which guide the application and selection process. The Terms and Conditions attached to the Scholarships may be viewed on our website.

On pages 18 – 33 we introduce more fully the 275 young Africans who make up the first 11 Classes, with special emphasis on the Class of 2014.
A MESSAGE FROM THE MRF CHAIR

As you will read elsewhere in the Yearbook (and indeed the entire document is testament to this fact), the year 2014 was an exceptional one for The Mandela Rhodes Foundation in general and for our much-in-demand Mandela Rhodes Scholarships programme in particular.

New heights kept being scaled, and it was a heady feeling to observe both the numbers of Scholars and our organisational capacity and efficiency grow markedly in these 12 months. My colleagues report in detail on these matters in the various sections of this annual review.

This year, for two reasons that I will set out, I would like to begin with a focus on a different element in my annual message from the Chair. I would like to share with all our constituents and supporters some fascinating data that has emerged from our first 10 Classes of Mandela Rhodes Scholars, regarding the fields of study Scholars have gravitated towards in the first decade; and also where they are finding themselves professionally after completing the Mandela Rhodes Scholarship experience.

My reasons for wanting to do this are: one, because the data is available for the first time, and: two, because of my own lifelong involvement with and passion for higher learning.

So in what fields did the first decade Mandela Rhodes Scholars study? As a starting point to give us a high-level picture, our management team used five broad categories. (These categories will no doubt be reviewed and refined as we proceed, but they do give us a good first glance.) The Mandela Rhodes Scholars’ fields of study 2005–2014 emerged as follows:

- Humanities: 13.6%
- Social Sciences: 35.2%
- Formal Sciences: 3.6%
- Natural Sciences: 9.9%
- Professional & Applied Sciences: 37.5%

Remembering that we do not apply ‘quotas’ in any form (and so are agnostic about applicants’ academic fields of study, as long as the proposed degrees are at either Honours or Masters level), it is very interesting to see what our Scholars are choosing. I will be equally interested to hear from our various stakeholders what they think about the picture painted above … feel free to share your views with us.

What is also of great interest to us, though the data certainly needs more interrogation and analysis, is where graduated Scholars find themselves now – in other words, where has ‘life after the Scholarship’ taken them in terms of careers and life situations? The following 24 areas have emerged from our first-pass analysis of the Classes of 2005 to 2012:

- Academia: 8.9%
- Finance: 7.7%
- Psychology: 7.7%
- Health: 7.1%
- Studying: 7.1%
- Business: 6.5%
- Arts: 5.9%
- Sciences: 5.3%
- Government: 5.3%
- Civil Society: 5.3%
- Research: 4.1%
- Consultancy: 3.6%
- Administration/Operations: 3.0%
- Development: 3.0%
- Leadership Development: 3.0%
- Information Technology: 3.0%
- Media: 2.4%
- Law: 2.4%
- Teaching: 2.4%
- Politics: 1.8%
- Agriculture: 1.8%
- Transition/Unemployed: 1.2%
- Theology: 1.2%
- Quantity Surveying/Construction: 0.6%

I look forward to us building these and other pictures as we discover, effectively, what it is that we have all collectively done over the past decade.

But back to 2014. The Board of Trustees was hosted at Rhodes House in March and in addition to a highly successful meeting we were able to give a dinner to celebrate the extraordinary contribution to the development of the MRF of The Leverhulme Trust of London. In particular we had the opportunity to honour Niall FitzGerald KBE, who has supported the Mandela legacy organisations and especially the MRF, right from the beginning.

For the remainder of the year I enjoyed, as always, the support, assistance and guidance of my fellow Trustees Sir John Hood, Charles Conn, Achmat Dangor, Dr Mo Ibrahim, John McCall MacBain, Dr Phumzile Mlambo-Ngcuka, Justice Yvonne Mokgoro and Julian Ogilvie Thompson. Thanks also to the Chairs and members of our smooth-functioning Sub-Committees, and of course to the Executive Director and his small but highly effective team, who make it all happen.

Professor NS Ndebele, Chair
The Mandela Rhodes Foundation
Cape Town
These are the phrases that I keep in mind when I am looking to the future of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation (MRF) during my work as one of the Rhodes Trust Trustees of the MRF.

As our very able Executive Director and Chair have outlined in their messages, our past decade ending 2014 was strong with 235 Mandela Rhodes Scholars to date in a variety of disciplines and 55 Mandela Rhodes Scholars in residence in 2015. We all realise, however, that there are more than just 50 talented future leaders in Africa who need leadership training over one or two years in their twenties. That is the challenge we must balance with our finances, programming, university partners, staffing, capacity, cohort size, marketing and selection. As Cecil Rhodes once said: “So little done, so much to do.”

Let’s review our progress to increase leadership on the African continent in 2014. At the annual board meeting in early 2015, after reviewing the year 2014, the Trustees approved management’s plan to double the number of Scholars in residence to 100 by the Class of 2018, our 15th anniversary. This will be done by a gradual increase in Scholars not exceeding 25% in any one year.

This growth will require several corresponding changes to meet this challenge. On selections, this involves two selection committees starting in 2014 and three by 2018. For the leadership development workshops, the Foundation continues to believe that the ideal group size is 25 to 35 participants so as of 2016 there will be two workshops to maintain the quality of interactions. For the larger number of applicants and Scholars, the Foundation is undertaking a digitisation project. For the financial resources, the Foundation thanks the many donors and many new donors in the future who will help make this all possible.

I look at the MRF as an 11-year-old start-up that is now entering a major growth phase. Our challenge is to maintain the quality of selection and programming while increasing our impact in Africa.

Our Co-Founder Nelson Mandela gives us purpose in our quest when he said: “Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world.”

Please, join us in this adventure to change the world, one Scholar at a time!

John McCall MacBain
The Rhodes Trust
Oxford
The best year ever in an already storied history. This is the happy conclusion that was reached by the Board of Trustees of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation and its key stakeholders in reviewing 2014.

This was the 11th year of operations in the development of our aspirational, counter-intuitive – even audacious – experiment in putting contrasting and contested African legacies to work together for the benefit of current and future generations.

It was a year of myriad new milestones. Having dealt at the ends of 2012 and 2013 respectively with the traumas of the passing of our founding Chair and then of our Patron, 2014 closed off of 2012 and 2013 respectively with the traumas of the passing of 2012 and 2013 respectively with the traumas of the passing of our founding Chair and then of our Patron, 2014 closed off of 2012 and 2013 respectively with the traumas of the passing of our founding Chair and then of our Patron, 2014 closed off.

In our assessment of the year, we referred internally to 2014. On every measure that counts, important further progress was made in the plans to surpass all targets.

We will now be able to keep these sorts of statistics updated and to delve much deeper into the rich material we have carefully recorded and stored over the years.

As always the year saw the MRF interacting with a range of prominent individuals and institutions. Among the high points were addresses to the Class of 2014 Scholars by British High Commissioner Judith Macgregor and, later in the year, United States Ambassador Patrick Gaspard. The African Arts Institute paid a visit to the Mandela Rhodes Building; I was pleased to give an address at the Frederik Van Zyl Slabbert Leadership Institute in Stellenbosch; and we hosted a Nelson Mandela Foundation dialogue in our boardroom with President Michelle Bachelet of Chile. Finally, we closed a busy year for the Building with a moving wreath-laying ceremony on St George’s Mall to mark the first anniversary of Mr Mandela’s death. This was attended by the Mayor of Cape Town and other dignitaries, as well as schoolchildren and the public.

These successive years of achievement for The Mandela Rhodes Foundation do not of course happen by accident. There is a veritable army of people, ranging out from Cape Town and around the globe, who make our work possible. I most sincerely thank them all, but in particular our Chair and Board of Trustees, our Committee members, our Scholars both in residence and in the alumni organisation and, most of all, my marvellous MRF team: Ernst, Judy, Julia, Pam, Shivon and Tim. It’s an honour (as well as a great pleasure) to work with you all.

To end on a colourful note: please be sure to go to Milestones on page 10 to see and read about the extraordinary ‘splash art’ portraits Trustee and benefactor John McCall MacBain commissioned by world renowned artist Michael Raia for us this year. The original now hangs in Bishopscourt, and a fine ‘all-weather’ copy adorns the atrium of the Mandela Rhodes Building. John makes Mandela Rhodes magic yet again!

A REVIEW OF 2014 BY THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The number of Mandela Rhodes Scholars in residence reached a new high: 55.

An organisational restructure brought remarkable improvements and greater efficiencies.

The content of the Leadership Workshops was captured as MRF intellectual property.

The preserved endowment for sustainability continued to improve.

The move to selection committees sitting in different regions was seamless.

Guidelines and a framework for a new peer Mentoring Programme were completed.

Good progress was made towards a wholly revamped website and database.

A Class Giving Campaign was launched, to enable Scholars to ‘give back’.

Another outstanding feature of 2014 was that we were able to begin to work with meaningful historical data, as we now had access to information covering the first 10 Classes of Mandela Rhodes Scholars. In a ‘quantitative glance’ at high-level data, we extracted the following salient facts about the first decade of Mandela Rhodes Scholars:

- 235 Mandela Rhodes Scholars were elected from 2005 to 2014.
- The average age at the time of taking up the Scholarship was 23.
- Scholars originated from 17 different African countries.
- Scholars studied at 19 different institutions of higher learning.
- Approximately 58% of Scholars studied at Masters level, and 42% at Honours level.
- 74% graduated by the end of 2014; 20% were completing; 6% would not complete.
- 51% of Scholars were female, and 49% male.

We will now be able to keep these sorts of statistics updated each year so that we can monitor any patterns and identify opportunities and challenges. Once our new database technology is in place and fully functional, we will also be able to delve much deeper into the rich material we have carefully recorded and stored over the years.

New Mandela Rhodes Scholarships awarded in 2014 rose from 27 to 35.
The Mandela Rhodes Foundation is a charitable trust with the registration number IT5 164/2003. It is governed by an independent Board of Trustees in terms of a Notarial Deed of Trust. Trust information is contained in the Financial Results on pages 39–47 of this Yearbook.

The Characteristics Sought in a Mandela Rhodes Scholar

Young African,

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you dream of being a leader; a leader in whose blend of character and intellect Africa will take pride.

Aspire to this if you believe you have within you the moral force of character and instinct to lead; and understand that leadership is more than personal ambition, it is also service, requiring the will and capacity to inspire and develop fellow human beings to their own excellence;

Aspire to this if you believe that the advancement of individual and social fulfiment, human rights, dignity, the achievement of fundamental freedoms, is among the highest of callings;

Aspire to this if you believe that hard work is essential, and you esteem the performance of public duties to be among the noblest of aims.

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you understand education to be both a gift and a tool for the advancement of human development, to the benefit of all.

Aspire to this if you value and pursue scholastic attainment, but understand that intellectual excellence is not to be seen in isolation from other qualities of character; that leaders require a roundedness of personality;

Aspire to this if you believe that in receiving an exceptional education, an individual embraces a responsibility to foster such opportunities for others;

Aspire to this if you believe that your own success might also make a difference to others.

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you believe in an entrepreneurial spirit to allow Africa to take with dignity its rightful place as an equal and competitive presence in the global world.

Aspire to this if you have the vigour to pursue this aim with integrity; and the energy to use your talents to the full, as exemplified by a fondness for and success in team pursuits beyond the confines of your professional career;

Aspire to this if you believe that individual human effort, innovation and creativity will lead to the betterment of society and an effective contribution to the world;

Aspire to this if you believe in being part of creating a humane world in which all individuals and cultures enjoy equal respect; a world whose emergence will say a new order is born in which we are all each other’s keepers;

Aspire to this if you value truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindliness, unselfishness and fellowship;

Aspire to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar if you believe in reconciliation, freedom, peace and prosperity among all human beings, who should share equal citizenship and opportunities in this world.

Aspire to this if you love Africa and all of its peoples.

MILESTONES OF THE MANDELA RHODES FOUNDATION 2014

Each Class of Mandela Rhodes Scholars is unique, of course, but the Class of 2014 enjoyed a special distinction: it constituted the 10th cohort since the inception of the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships programme. It was also, at 35, the largest Class ever and made the most of three superb Leadership Workshops – Introductory, Mid-Year, and Completion – designed around the Mandela Rhodes principles of Education, Leadership, Reconciliation and Entrepreneurship. The pages that follow give a pictorial account of their stimulating journey.

JANUARY
THE INTRODUCTORY WORKSHOP

The Class of 2014 got together as a group for the first time at the Introductory Workshop in Cape Town, facilitated by Mandela Rhodes Scholar Judy Sikuza (SA & NMMU 2007), supported by the Executive Director and MRF staff. The three-day workshop saw the new Class being introduced to the principles of the Foundation, meeting the leadership of the alumni organisation, the Mandela Rhodes Community, and participating in a challenging programme. There were also site visits to the Mandela Rhodes Building, Groote Schuur, and Rhodes Cottage.

JANUARY
BRITISH HIGH COMMISSIONER ADDRESSES SCHOLARS
The Class of 2014 was privileged to have British High Commissioner Judith Macgregor as keynote speaker at the Introductory Workshop’s gala dinner, introduced by MRF Chair Professor Ndebele and Executive Director Shaun Johnson. The High Commissioner spoke about her personal leadership journey, which has taken her around the world, and also of the importance of the bilateral SA-UK partnership that brought the MRF into being. The stylish event also offered Scholars the opportunity to bring out their fashion finery.

MARCH
13TH MEETING OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES
At Rhodes House in Oxford this year (in terms of the annually alternating venues for meetings of the MRF’s Board of Trustees), the gathering was as always a great success. In attendance along with Professor Ndebele in the Chair; were Trustees Charles Conn, Dr Mo Ibrahim, John McCall MacBain, Justice Yvonne Mokgoro, and Julian Ogilvie Thompson.

MRF HONOURS THE LEVERHULME TRUST IN OXFORD

Rhodes House opened its doors for a celebratory dinner following the Board meeting, to honour and acknowledge the extraordinary contribution to the MRF’s development made by the London-based Leverhulme Trust over the years. The role in particular of Niall FitzGerald KBE was formally recorded, and Niall was accompanied by his wife Ingrid and several Leverhulme-connected colleagues.

MARCH

PERFORMANCE ART PORTRAIT OF PATRON

MRF Trustee and benefactor John McCall MacBain yet again provided a wonderful surprise, this time by commissioning international performance artist Michaël Raivard to create a portrait of the late Mr Mandela in front of an audience at Rhodes House. At the end of the memorable performance, John handed over the artwork to Executive Director Shaun Johnson to take it into the MRF’s care in Cape Town.
JULY

THE MID-YEAR SCHOLAR WORKSHOP

In the winter chill of Cape Town the Class of 2014 came together for the second stage of their year-long leadership development programme. Highlights of the intense experience included hearing from one of Mr Mandela’s former warders, as well as listening to a conversation between struggle veteran, diplomat and business person Cheryl Carolus, and MRF Executive Director Shaun Johnson – reminiscing about the ‘struggle days’. The Workshop ended with a powerful input from Constitutional Court Judge and Rhodes Scholar Justice Edwin Cameron.

JULY
The Class of 2014 thrilled members of a Cape Town old age home by taking time out from their Workshop to entertain the elders with their performing talents – and not forgetting to take along some gifts in true Mandela Rhodes spirit, to mark Mandela Day.

JULY
MRF Executive Director Shaun Johnson was invited to deliver a keynote address at the Frederik van Zyl Slabbert Leadership Institute at Stellenbosch University, at an event attended by a number of Mandela Rhodes Scholars currently in Stellenbosch.

AUGUST
The Mandela Rhodes Foundation and our headquarters, the Mandela Rhodes Building, were paid a singular honour in playing host to the Nelson Mandela Foundation-organised dialogue with President Michelle Bachelet of Chile. Invited guests, who included Mrs Graça Machel and the Honourable Kgalema Motlanthe among other dignitaries, were enthralled by the conversation – as were Mandela Rhodes Scholars present.

SEPTEMBER
THE COMPLETION WORKSHOP

With the year having flashed by, it was back to Cape Town for the Class of 2014 and the inevitably bittersweet closure of Scholars’ year in residence as Mandela Rhodes Scholars. As they proceeded to complete the leadership development programme and prepare to take leave of one another, Scholars were given the time and space to expand on their personal stories. They were also treated to compelling addresses by businessman, MRF benefactor and Rhodes Scholar Isaac Shongwe, and later by United States Ambassador Patrick Gaspard, who travelled especially to the Mandela Rhodes Building.

7th CONFERENCE OF THE ALUMNI

The Mandela Rhodes Community held a successful 7th annual conference immediately after the Completion Workshop and ended off in style with a winelands banquet.

OCTOBER
SELECTING THE CLASS OF 2015

MRF history was made in October as growing Scholar numbers made it necessary to hold two final interview sessions for the Class of 2015. In Cape Town, the Committee comprised Professor Njabulo Ndebele, Shaun Johnson, Judy Sikuza, Margie Keeton and Tim Cumming, while in Johannesburg, Njabulo, Judy and Shaun were joined by Sello Hatang and Lieze Kotze. The expansionary move was a success, boding well for the future.

DECEMBER
FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE PATRON’S PASSING

It was a sad but also celebratory event as MRF staff and Scholars spilled out of our building on to St George’s Mall and invited all who wished to join us to mark the first anniversary of the Patron’s passing. Dignitaries including the Mayor and senior politicians, MRF staff, passers-by, neighbouring businesses, schoolchildren … all participated and made the wreath-laying moving and memorable.
WIDESPREAD MEDIA COVERAGE FOR MRF

Each year coverage of the Mandela Rhodes Class in residence seems to grow, as does attention paid to the achievement of alumni. The selection of reports on this page gives a sense of the depth and breadth of interest that exists in the doings of the Foundation and its flagship programme.

Mandela Rhodes Scholarships are tenable at recognised South African institutions of higher learning, and offer unique educational and leadership opportunities to talented young Africans who display the potential evoked in the document, The Characteristics Sought in a Mandela Rhodes Scholar, set out on page 7 of this Yearbook. Applicants must hold a first degree, be a citizen of an African country, and be under the age of 30 years at the time of taking up a Scholarship if offered to them.

The Mandela Rhodes Scholarships programme is further distinguished by a rigorous application and selection system, overseen by the Executive Director but involving all staff. The ‘search’ to ‘select’ process takes place over several months of each year, and the Foundation benefits from extraordinary co-operation by institutions of higher learning, and in particular from dedicated liaison persons on the various campuses. The application and selection process culminates towards the end of the year, when a high-calibre and experienced Selection Committee interviews the finalists, and names the Mandela Rhodes Scholars to take up their Scholarships in the new year. The number of new Scholarships to be awarded is determined by the Foundation’s Board of Trustees each year.

‘MY YEAR AS A MANDELA RHODES SCHOLAR’: EXPERIENCES OF THE CLASS OF 2014

Sanaa Abrahams
Rhodes University
BA Hons Philosophy
Sanaa was born in 1991 in Cape Town, South Africa.

January 2014
“I am privileged to have befriended the brilliantly talented and high-minded individuals who are my fellow Mandela Rhodes Scholars. I am inspired by these young African leaders who are so interested in Pan-Africanism. I remain grateful to the Foundation for the rich opportunity for engagement we were presented in leadership training.”

July 2014
“The reconciliation workshop was both a visceral and intellectual experience for me as a Scholar. The chance we were given to hear those narratives of great individuals who, in courageous acts of reconciliation, were able to find commonality with a foe, could not fail to deeply impress me. I hope this has enjoined me to approach reconciliation in Africa with the sensitivity befitting its complexity.”

September 2014
“The Entrepreneurship workshop challenged me, as someone with little mind for business, to broaden my understanding of how I can set social initiatives in motion and take risks in my own growth.”

Paul Amayo
University of Cape Town
MSc Engineering
Paul was born in 1991 in Nairobi, Kenya.

January 2014
“It was a very insightful experience engaging with other young minds that were not only passionate about their own fields but genuinely passionate about bringing change to our continent. I felt an immediate sense of family with the group as a whole and will always cherish the laughter and conversations shared. More importantly, it was an avenue for my own growth.”

July 2014
“Reflecting on the workshop, the lessons I have learned are broad and far reaching. However, from the remarkable and still ongoing process of national reconciliation in South Africa to the more personal and intimate stories of self-reconciliation shared, one theme rang through. This is that true reconciliation will not happen overnight but will always begin with the self.”

September 2014
“The entrepreneurship workshop was a brilliant way to cap a remarkable year. I felt challenged not only by the speakers but by my colleagues to not only dream of social change but to start bringing it about now in my own small way. An experience I will forever cherish.”

Unathi Beku
Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University
Hons Economics
Unathi was born in 1993 in Umntata, South Africa.

January 2014
“The past four days have served as a time of genuine self-reflection and awareness amongst a group of people I could trust enough to be vulnerable with and who in return have celebrated me. It has been a privilege forming a network and support system with people who genuinely care about my hopes, dreams, growth and development.”

July 2014
“The reconciliation workshop has given me a lot to think about on personalising reconciliation and reconciling with the self before tackling the issue at a broader scale. I’ve also realised the importance of not limiting my understanding of others. I need to consciously unlearn all that I have been taught and believed in so that I do not judge people before I have given myself time to get to know and understand them.”

September 2014
“The completion workshop put all of my thoughts regarding the future into perspective. I am excited by the idea of bringing about meaningful impact and serving my passion rather than just being a young employed South African. Throughout the workshop it was really amazing reflecting on our growth as the 2014 cohort and realising how dedicated we were to each other’s growth.”

Kangwa-Musole Chisanga
University of Cape Town
LLM
KC was born in 1993 in Luanshya, Zambia.

January 2014
“Looking back at the events of the past three days, I can only find one word to describe how I feel affirmation. Upon accepting the Scholarship there was a sense of intimidation about the high standard a Mandela Rhodes Scholar must maintain. This was furthered upon viewing the cohort of 2014, I did not feel worthy, but the past few days have come to show that I am part of a family I was meant to be part of. My membership has been affirmed.”

July 2014
“One never truly masters how to reduce such experiences into words. Admittedly, I was never ready for the depth that this workshop brought each day. From sharing personal accounts with the other Scholars and in turn listening to theirs, I got to know the cohort and myself much more over this weekend. I left the workshop alive to the realities that come with being united.”

September 2014
“My mindset entering this workshop was melancholy. Considering it to be our final gathering, I worried needlessly. It is evident that the connection made over this year transcends geographical location, academic or professional position. This workshop showed me that all ends are indeed new beginnings. I am optimistic about the journey ahead.”

Kristal Duncan
University of Cape Town
MPublic Health
Kristal was born in 1985 in Cape Town, South Africa.

January 2014
“It was very apparent from the beginning that while we were a group of very special people, the thing which unites us more than anything is love. Throughout the weekend all of the growing and sharing which took place was only as a result of this special thread which held us all together. On a personal level I have explored more of myself in these four days than I have in the past four years.”

July 2014
“If I thought the first workshop on leadership was amazing then I need to invent a new adjective for the reconciliation workshop! Before the workshop I believed reconciliation took place at the community level, but I couldn’t have been more wrong. By Sunday, I really felt I was looking at the world through completely new eyes and had lots of work to do in the area of self-reconciliation. Thanks Class of 2014 for the most deeply moving four days of my life.”

September 2014
“I thought I knew my fellow MRF Scholars well, but boy did I learn a lot. The creative session was an amazing space where honesty and creativity came together to create a truly magical experience which I will never forget. Additionally, finding solutions to Africa’s problems was hard work, but well worth it and it was wonderful to be encouraged and pushed to think outside the box.”

“I have experienced how being a part of the Mandela Rhodes family can change one’s life and support one’s dreams. The cohort created a safe space in which each individual could express their thoughts and feelings on issues they are passionate about. We inspired each other to believe in our ideas and to strive towards our future plans together. Most of all, we inspired each other to dance together.”

July 2014
“Engaging with the theme of reconciliation was a challenging but necessary experience. The safe space in which we could have discussions about pertinent issues such as race and inequality was invaluable. It was beneficial to hear the perspectives of Scholars from various African countries with regards to these issues. I learnt to put into practice keeping an open mind and heart where my own conceptions of self were challenged.”

September 2014
“The workshop on entrepreneurship grew me in many ways, especially with regard to developing my self-confidence and determination to bring to action ideas that have been forming in my thoughts for some time now. It was also wonderful to see how the connections between the Scholars in the cohort have developed throughout the year and it excites me to see what collaborations will occur in the future.”

January 2014
“I feel blessed and privileged to part of the Mandela Rhodes family. I feel challenged to push myself to the next level. I feel empowered to launch into greatness. I feel loved and motivated in the company of change-makers. I am forever grateful for the privilege. I pledge to make the most of what it offers.”

July 2014
“The July reconciliation workshop was an enriching experience for me. It offered me a conducive atmosphere to reflect on my life and reconnect to my true self. The approach of personal story telling, engaged throughout the workshop, worked poignantly, and it revealed the indubitable truth that reconciliation begins with the self. We should not dream of a reconciled society without each individual member making an effort to reconcile with his or herself.”

September 2014
“The entrepreneurship workshop was a great learning experience for me. I have learnt to embrace life: its beauty and challenges. I have learnt to dream big but start small. I have learnt that greatness comes through consistent adherence to the principles. I have learnt to make peace with my past. I have learnt to see and appreciate what is on the other side of the wall, without having to relocate to the other side. I am grateful to have been part of this life-transforming journey. God bless The Mandela Rhodes Foundation! God Bless Africa!”

January 2014
“What a privilege to spend the past few days with an incredible group of people! We are all so different but united in a common vision. It is truly an experience I will cherish forever. I look forward to all of us being part of this amazing Mandela Rhodes family.”

July 2014
“The reconciliation workshop was a truly memorable experience. We delved deep into the complexities of reconciliation on a continental, national and personal level and the discussions we had reflected the diverse nature of our group. The spirit among the Scholars and openness to share experiences was wonderfully enriching. The visit to Solms Delta was inspiring as it showed how the principles of reconciliation can be practically applied in addressing the contentious issue of land reform in South Africa.”

September 2014
“Another workshop full of great facilitation, fascinating discussions and relationship-building. The individual input was really special, with Scholars sharing their deepest passions and life stories. It was indicative of the strength of the bond we created over the past year. The whole Mandela Rhodes journey is and will surely stay one of the most defining moments of my life. Thank you to all who were involved in making this an unforgettable year.”

January 2014
“When I reflect on the potential and character of my cohort, I am filled with confidence in the future of our continent. The hope and ideals expressed – and the ability and resolve our cohort has shown to make these a reality – serve as a strong contradiction to Afropessimism. Africa’s future is bright, and I feel extremely privileged to be part of it.”

July 2014
“I leave the workshop with a deep gratitude for my fellow Scholars and the Foundation’s staff, for the manner in which they have contributed to an honest and courageous, yet gentle and compassionate discourse on reconciliation. The workshop has helped me to explore the complexity of identity in post-Apartheid South Africa, to broaden my historical consciousness through interactions with those who were present when history was made, and to appreciate the contemporary role of reconciliation.”

September 2014
“Previously, Mandela Rhodes Scholars have spoken of the bittersweet feelings associated with the completion workshop. While saying goodbye to close friends was certainly difficult, the overriding sense was that the completion workshop was only the beginning of our contribution to the African continent. It was, for me, an exciting workshop where we were encouraged to dream big.”

“I asked something like: ‘How did the MRF manage to get such a group of multi-talented, unique and visionary young people together? How?’ I’ve been challenged by these fantastic intelligent and open-minded people. This is my new family. I have definitely loved and cherished the experience. It is like no other.”

July 2014
“Greatest battles are fought in the mind and this workshop shoots arrows to enable you to reconcile with the inner you – clearing out your complexes. Then you realise how easy it is to live peacefully and fruitfully with diverse people. The experience makes the MRF Scholarship the best in the world. Everyone needs that experience.”

September 2014
“Looking behind the curtain of the year, I see another wonder of the world – the 2014 family of the Mandela Rhodes Scholars. I wish I could get the biblical Joshua to click the year 2014 on pause, or someone divine to put the year on repeat. No one can put a price on my experience as a 2014 Mandela Rhodes Scholar. And if you’ve never felt loved, try joining the Mandela Rhodes family!”

January 2014
“I am so grateful to now be a part of the special Mandela Rhodes family and to be immersed in an environment as conducive to my growth as an individual and my development as a future leader. I am truly inspired by the passion embodied in every single Scholar to be an agent for positive social change.”

July 2014
“The Reconciliation workshop was an intense, emotional and meaningful experience, anchored in a space of deep authenticity. Experiential sessions, group activities, music workshops and exemplary speakers, helped me internalise and gain a deeper understanding of the real emotions and diverse perspectives that exist around issues of race, gender and privilege. Ultimately this delivered profound insights into what reconciliation at a national as well as personal level actually means and requires.”

September 2014
“We were presented with a particular brand of entrepreneurship according to which an entrepreneurial initiative is chiefly a creative problem solving tool for social concerns. Theoretical input and practical workshops from prestigious guest speakers became tangible when we interacted with previous Scholars and heard from them their successes and challenges.”

January 2014
“I was made aware of the origins and intentions of the Scholarship and we were encouraged to consider the possibilities and responsibilities it presents. When you put together a group of people who might, because of various social structures, otherwise not interact, it is very exciting to discover areas of like-mindedness. What an honour it is to be associated with the legacy of Madiba.”

July 2014
“The reconciliation workshop was a real grappling with issues of race, gender, class, identity and sexuality. Frank but respectful discussions were enriched by a variety of guest speakers. It is exciting living in such a complex nation at such a complex time. It was a weekend of heavy topics lightened by laughter.”

September 2014
“What is a life-changing experience. These past 200 days of university have been a blessing and a half. I have truly learned how much power one has the moment they show up for themselves and others. The 2014 cohort has been the coolest and most inspiring family I’ve had so far. With so much humility in 35 people, it is no wonder they are annoyingly epic.”

January 2014
“One of the greatest gifts we can give Africa is producing people who have the same vision and objectives of developing it. I’m so excited to be part of such a group. It has been an amazing life experience meeting driven human beings who have enabled me to learn more about our land and, surprisingly, myself.”

July 2014
“Such an honest and brave week: from everyone, I am at peace with myself. I have come to the realisation that I have nothing to prove to society; I am me. This group of individuals has become a family … my family. I love my class for being comfortable with ‘uncomfortable conversations’. What a week!”

September 2014
“The workshop on reconciliation was a huge eye-opener. It enabled me to appreciate the broader meaning of reconciliation, which goes beyond race to include sex, gender, and privilege. Testimonies of hopes, aspirations, dislikes, wishes and what ifs made me come to the realisation that despite all the differences, we are after all one people who want the best for themselves, their families and communities. Hence it should be much easier to work together in nation building.”

September 2014
“The September workshop gave me mixed feelings. I was sad that it was the last of these magnificent gatherings. I was also anxious about what the new year would bring after such a remarkable year. The year had quickly come to a seemingly unforeseen end. The last workshop was packed with lifelong lessons that I will always cherish and apply in my life. The guest speakers, individual and group activities and logistics; everything was designed to perfection. I salute the MRF team.”

“This has been a truly enriching experience. I am thankful to be part of a group of great young minds who have not only challenged me anew to bring about change, but have added a new flavour to my life. I have rediscovered what I have to give to this continent, and I have met wonderful companions along the way. I’m excited to take on a journey of influence.”

July 2014
“This workshop gave me hope that we as young South Africans from different races, genders, religious backgrounds and socio-economic status can sit together around one table and have open, honest, constructive, but also respectful and loving conversations about the deep and difficult issues that underpin our society. Within the tensions of our diversity lies the potential for innovative and imaginative solutions to emanate. It is now for our generation to work towards a reconciled society and I hope to play a part in this journey.”

September 2014
“This workshop has given me a better understanding of the complexities surrounding social change, but also of the opportunities which lie in identifying leverage points where we can have influence. If we want to live in a more equal, socially just society it will require each one of us to approach issues and solutions innovatively and with an entrepreneurial mindset. The highlight of this workshop was listening to presentations by each Scholar. It made me realise again what a wonderfully diverse group we are and what a privilege it has been to journey with such individuals.”

“I have realised anew how exciting it is to be a South African – I don’t want to live anywhere else. I am filled with a sense of responsibility to put in everything I have to change this continent for the better and feel empowered to do it through this amazing new network of friends and future leaders. I know our paths will continue to cross as we change Africa together.”

July 2014
“This workshop gave us the opportunity to get real about issues that are still very relevant in our country, but are often swept under the carpet. We had the privilege of sharing honestly our own experiences and hurt and brainstorming together how we as a country and continent could continue the healing process. The journey starts with ourselves but is one that we cannot complete without each other. Looking forward to continue walking with these guys.”

September 2014
“The final workshop brought together the entire MRF experience so nicely by encouraging us to realise that it is time to step up and make our own contributions, no matter how daunting it may seem. Hearing everyone’s personal contributions reminded me that Africa has some pretty awesome young leaders that are going to take the world by storm. Thank you for an incredible journey that will continue to inspire me.”

“The first workshop was very interesting, instructive but also interrogative for me. I found myself in a group of young, very talented and unique people that I now call brothers and sisters for change. It helped me realise how much I could learn beyond my field expertise. I had many conversations with Scholars who showed expertise in fields such as the creative arts, mathematics, engineering and health sciences that broadened my knowledge. I learnt how to appreciate other people’s values and recognise their talents.”

July 2014
“The reconciliation workshop was very enriching, instructive and at the same time stimulating. For me as a Congolese citizen, it was interesting to find out more about reconciliation in the South African context of racial segregation and the post-Apartheid era. I came with my own expectations of reconciliation which were obviously related to the Congolese Isaac Shongwe or Mo Ibrahim. While listening to them one thing kept on rotating in my mind: ‘Emmanuel, I never really quite understood entrepreneurship. I always linked it to business-people and capitalism. After the workshop, I am now appreciative of such concepts as social entrepreneurship and systems thinking. It was insightful that I engaged my mind in thinking about the ‘how’ part of solution generation. I was challenged to not only think of the problems, but to also think of innovative solutions. Great workshop.”

“I find myself in a group of young people who challenge me to be the best I can possibly be. I have been challenged to think, to step outside of my comfort zone and to learn more about the world around me. I have been immensely inspired and I think what has been most comforting is that I am not the only weird person on the face of the earth. I know that I am not alone and I don’t have to do it alone. I am home.”

July 2014
“The reconciliation workshop has been very powerful for me. I appreciate most the section on self-reconciliation. I’m truly grateful to have undergone such a profound process of personal reflection in a loving and accepting space created by my fellow Scholars. I feel in the presence of family. I’m truly grateful to the MRF for its committed investment in our growth. I thank you MRF for urging me to first reconcile myself before attempting to reconcile the world. This truly has been a defining moment for me.”

September 2014

January 2014

“I have found inspiration, friendship and a family. I have come to realise how the best leadership strategies should be influenced by both internal and external factors. I have decided to understand my personal frameworks so as to best apply myself in a leadership role.”

July 2014

“I look back at the workshop on reconciliation with awe. I learnt a lot about interpersonal relationships, but even more about self-reconciliation and its benefits. Through interactions and debates with fellow Scholars, my beliefs were actually strengthened, as default stances became factual positions. The process of reconciliation is just that, a process. I will continue to practice reconciliation, but now on a more conscious level.”

September 2014

“The entrepreneurship workshop made me realise that playing it safe and fearing failure will not help me achieve greatness. I was provided with the opportunity to reassess my goals, the reasons I chase them, as well as the values I will uphold when pursuing them. This, my Mandela Rhodes experience, has been quite an experience.”

January 2014

“My Mandela Rhodes experience was indescribable. No words can begin to express my joy and gratitude of being so privileged to be part of the MRF family. My purpose of wanting to become an agent of change in our beloved continent has become vividly clear. The thought of knowing that I am surrounded by young brilliant minds who share the same dream of the advancement and transformation of Africa is beyond fulfilling – it is incredible. Thank you for this experience, MRF!”

July 2014

“The highlight for me of the reconciliation workshop was the story of Justice Edwin Cameron. I learnt a great deal from him. His talk made me think of how much better South Africa, Africa, and in fact the world would be if we had leaders like Justice Cameron who are able to stand boldly and declare their sexuality and HIV status to the rest of the world.”

September 2014

“The last workshop was not only sad because we had to say our goodbyes as resident Scholars but it was remarkable and moving too. I have always viewed entrepreneurship from one – angle that it is profit-driven and not something that can be used to uplift and impact our communities positively – but the workshop taught me otherwise. The MRF family has afforded me an opportunity of a lifetime and has shown me that there are endless possibilities out there.”

January 2014

“The most powerful moment for me was seeing our names on the Scholars board at the MRF building already (as opposed to once we complete the year). It showed me that being a Scholar is a responsibility and privilege to live into, not up to. I’m excited to walk that path with such authentic powerhouse with a deep, shared heart for Africa.”

July 2014

“I know for a fact that I will look back upon this workshop as a life-changing moment in my personal and leadership journey. This workshop was an unravelling of unexamined and unspoken beliefs. It brought us closer to each other, as we all revealed the scars that this racially-ill society has left us all with. I will never forget.”

September 2014

“This workshop has been such a gift in opening our minds to the how of world-changing and innovation. It challenged my thinking and equipped me with useful tools to tackle the pain points that break my heart for my continent. I appreciated the encouragement for entrepreneurialism in all sectors – no matter what your passion. Most of all, seeing into the hearts and souls of my fellow Scholars is a gift I will treasure forever.”

January 2014

“The Mandela Rhodes Foundation and my 2014 cohort have truly transformed my life. In a very short period of time, I gained a family of 35. I love the environment that the MRF has created, one that enables us all to sally forth and be splendid. I look forward to witnessing the amazing things that the class of 2014 will achieve and I look forward to living in an African environment that has been shaped for the better.”

July 2014

“The mid-year workshop revealed the centrality of self-reconciliation in a contested African space that requires the reconciliation of our histories, people, paradigms and societal goals. I gained such an appreciation for the multi-faceted nature of reconciliation within the African context. These revelations placed an immense responsibility on us to actively pursue reconciliation in order to spur national (and continental) reconciliation that restores the human dignity of all Africans.”

September 2014

“The entrepreneurship workshop highlighted the value of having an enterprising spirit in your endeavours as an individual, in your life and in your striving to live an impactful life. I take away from this workshop a desire to authentically give shape to my voice as an individual and to find innovative ways to add value to the spaces that I find myself in.”

January 2014

“It’s still hard to believe that I am a Mandela Rhodes Scholar. What a privilege it is to be counted among tomorrow’s leaders. As I embark on this journey, I can’t wait to see what God will make of it. No doubt, the best is yet to come. As a Mandela Rhodes Scholar, I’m excited to move into the future as an instrument of His love.”

July 2014

“The July workshop was quite a learning experience for me. It helped me reconcile to the fact that we are all from very unique backgrounds and thus see life from different perspectives. From this, I learnt that I should be slow to judge but quick to love the people around me as that is the one thing we all respond to – love. Going forward, I purpose to love my neighbour regardless of whether or not we share the same views.”

September 2014

“I learnt that life is all about taking initiative – opportunities are all around us, waiting to be explored. I also learnt that one can and should identify, leverage and use entrepreneurship as a catalyst for social change. Most importantly, I learnt that the genius of life is in understanding its systems and working towards solutions while keeping things simple.”
Ultimately it is about making the change today. You need innovation and you need to be introduced in the workshops gave me the entrepreneur. I did not think that this would shifted my ideas of what it means to be an entrepreneur. I believe that as a Mandela Scholar, self-reconciliation was the most important lesson I was taught. I believe it feeling like I have practical solutions for real problems in our country and the continent. After the workshop I felt inspired and motivated and I feel like I can make a significant contribution to my country and the continent."

“Becoming part of the Mandela Rhodes family is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and it’s both humbling and surreal. It’s an amazing honour to be selected as a Scholar and to be seen as someone who has leadership skills that can be cultivated to serve Africa. No words on earth can express the experience of this great honour that has been bestowed on me. Thank you the MRF, I no longer fear greatness.”

July 2014
“Being a Mandela Rhodes Scholar changes the way you see things as a young person. You’re not only groomed into a leader, but you also learn about yourself. You’re challenged to better yourself first before trying to change the whole world. This is not just a scholarship, its being part of a family. Thank you Mandela Rhodes.”

September 2014
“The entrepreneurship workshop opened my eyes to the fact that opportunities lie in situations that seem hopeless. It’s up to us to see opportunities in these problems, creating both a solution for the problem and simultaneously making a profit. I realised that a Mandela Rhodes entrepreneur doesn’t just think about themselves; it’s about uplifting others and creating opportunities – that’s true innovation.”

July 2014
“I was privileged yet again to be part of an amazing workshop with a group of authentic and inspiring friends. Words fail to accurately describe the raw energy and power our conversations held around personal and national reconciliation. This workshop gave me a lot to think about and listening to others’ stories has left a profound impact on my worldview. I am more than ever committed to collaborative nation building.”

September 2014
“What a perfect way to close the MRF journey, I really enjoyed the whole weekend and learnt a lot about Systems Thinking and the complex nature of affecting social change. I most enjoyed the 10-minute presentations given by the other MR Scholars, as I felt it brought us closer as a group. I left feeling privileged to be part of the MRF family, something I will never forget.”

“We explored the big controversy around the merging of Cecil Rhodes and Nelson Mandela. In this merging, one of the factors came to mind: reconciliation. Lifelong friendships were made and I am now part of a family that will change Africa. The Mandela Rhodes care deeply for each Scholar and you have a sense of belonging from the moment the workshop begins.”

July 2014
“At the conclusion of the workshop I was able to define forgiveness as giving up the hope that the past could have been any different. I was inspired also by the stories of my colleagues, I believe it was during this workshop that we began to see one another through each other’s eyes, and we became a family. My grandmother sent angels in the form of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation to come and heal me.”

September 2014
“This was one of the best workshops I have attended. My perceptions were altered on how to ensure change by means of changing paradigms. You also need leverage to bring about necessary changes. We are not future leaders; we are current young leaders who should start now. I grew stronger in a relationship with all the members of my cohort and the MRF staff. This is why MRF is a real organisation. They provide possibilities to walk your talk.”

I go back to the Eastern Cape carrying the love of my fellow African brothers and sisters. I take away with me the lesson that we can embrace the past without being imprisoned by it.”

July 2014
“I have learnt that reconciliation is a process and not an end point. In South Africa we have a far way to go to address the hurts of the past but we need to keep seeing the humanity in one another in order for this to happen. I have learnt that, as leaders, we cannot begin to reconcile our families, communities or countries until we have begun the journey of self-reconciliation.”

September 2014

INTRODUCING THE MANDELA RHODES SCHOLARS OF 2015

THE 11TH CLASS OF MANDELA RHODES SCHOLARS

The Class of 2014 gathered as a group for the first time in Cape Town in January for the Introductory Workshop. All members of the Class attended the Workshop, facilitated by the MRF with some outside input. The new Scholars were taken on visits to sites relevant to the Foundation, and there were the traditional robust debates about the very different legacies of Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela and Cecil John Rhodes. Over the next few pages we take pleasure in introducing you to these exceptional young Africans. In addition to introducing them by name, country of origin, field of study, and institution of higher learning, we share their initial impressions of the experience of the first Mandela Rhodes Workshop. The selection of this latest (and largest) Class of Mandela Rhodes Scholars brings to 275 the total number of Scholarships awarded since the inception of the programme.

“Being amongst brilliant minds from all walks of life was an intensely rich experience. It illustrated that leadership has many faces. The MRF created a platform where ideas were challenged, people were inspired, relationships were born and people could let their guard down and become a part of the family. It was truly a remarkable experience.”

“The workshop was both highly exciting and enjoyable, and emotionally draining. It was mostly a wonderful opportunity to become a part of the Mandela Rhodes family. Engaging about personal and uncomfortable topics with my peers taught me a lot, but was rather exhausting. Glad I did though.”

“I loved engaging with other young leaders as multifaceted beings. Not just as intellects or organisers. We could show ourselves as people with weaknesses, with passions and pasts. We may be driven but we’re also artists, jokers, schemers and occasionally we’re awkward small talkers! When you connect like that, in this full spectrum, it oils all the deep difficult conversations.”

Richard Bryce
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Independent
Current Institution: University of Cape Town

“It’s the chills; it’s that Madiba magic. It’s there through every moment of engagement with the other Scholars. You feel at home. These people are your people, they want to change the world, make it a better place. But it’s amazing because they are such quiet workers ... That’s humbling, grounding – makes you aware that there is so much to be done, that can be done and that must be done.”

Jessica Breakey
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of Cape Town
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: Hons Gender & Transformation

“I think a huge part of being (and staying) relevant in 2015 is the ability to think and speak critically. I am so grateful to the MRF for facilitating spaces where the Scholars are able to engage with the leadership legacies of Rhodes and Mandela so honestly.”

“I believe that one of the truest and most honest human reactions, is the feeling of learning something new about oneself. It is not something that someone can truly describe to another person because it’s unique to everyone. It is based on your historic recollection of success and failures in your life. The MRF experience made me learn new things about myself every day. It also helped me feel like I was helping others learn new things about themselves as well. I guess that’s what makes a family. A MRF family.”

Rekgotsofetse Chikane
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of Cape Town
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: Hons Social Science

“The workshop was educative and mind-blowing. I learnt a lot of new things from the other 39 Scholars. I couldn’t believe that it was real; I thought I was dreaming being in the midst of such amazing future leaders. I took every opportunity to learn and interact with every one of them. The workshop took a different approach to all I have attended to date. Listening to peoples’ experiences made everything more intimate. It was totally different from the textbook leadership workshops; it was more like “leadership in action”. I grew in my thinking and greatly widened my scope of understanding. The workshop was a life-changing experience.”

Sendibitiyosi Gandidzanwa
Country of origin: Zimbabwe
Nominating Institution: Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University
Current institution: Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University
Degree: MSc Chemistry

“‘There was a point during the workshop when I felt that I wasn’t only at home in South Africa, I was at home in Africa. Sitting in a room of African visionaries, who I am fortunate to call friends, further pieced together that notion and cemented it into my paradigm. The diversity of thought surrounding the idea of a dignified life for all was inspiring and insightful. I am challenged by the MRF experience to learn and understand more.’”

Ameil Harikishun
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Rhodes University
Current Institution: Rhodes University
Degree: MSc Marine Biology

“‘I could not have asked for a better start to 2015. The discussions that took place among these 40 human beings and those there to support them inspired my commitment to learning and experiencing all that this context has to teach and gave me a sense of intention. The workshop was engaging, rejuvenating, and humbling: I can’t wait for July.’”

Kyla Hazell

“Having been amongst phenomenal people, I reminisce about the moment hope for Africa was reignited within me. I learned that the essence of our existence is to be found in others and that common welfare is an ideal worth fighting for. I will cherish the idea that leadership is an open-ended construct forever. It was a priceless opportunity and experience.”

Tanyardzwa Katiyo
Country of origin: Zimbabwe
Nominating Institution: Independent
Current Institution: University of Johannesburg
Degree: LLM

“The introductory workshop was an absolutely amazing experience for me. I must admit that I felt really intimidated to be meeting all the other Scholars for the first time. But when I met them I really felt that I was around great and humble people. I felt really humbled and blessed to be part of such a group. I feel really proud and privileged to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar, Class of 2015.”

Musa Kika
Country of origin: Zimbabwe
Nominating Institution: University of KwaZulu-Natal
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: LLM

“I now know that leadership begins with self-leadership and that it is individualised; hence the need for me to simply create the best version of myself. I realise I have been given the responsibility of service to Africa, and I have never felt as determined and ready to use my talents for such, while I learn about leadership and myself. And what an amazing network of young leaders I have to learn from and tap in to.”

Londiwe Magagula
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of KwaZulu-Natal
Current Institution: University of KwaZulu-Natal
Degree: MSc Ecological Sciences

“I walked away reconciled with myself, asking the whys instead of the whats, knowing that failure is acceptable and that walking away is courage. I met real people with real dreams; an awakening to the realisation that leadership is unconsciously bringing out the best in others as you reach out for your dreams. It is not playing on a small stage.”

Joseph Maisels
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: TSiBA
Current Institution: University of the Western Cape
Degree: Postgraduate Diploma in Finance

“Feeling welcomed into a community of real people who envisage change was the most vital aspect of the leadership workshop for me. We engaged with the context of the Foundation’s purpose in relation to Mandela and Rhodes. Finally we interrogated who we are as individuals and the how we intend to bring about the change we desire as leaders.”
Curwyn Mapaling

Degree: MA Clinical Psychology & Community Counselling

“I truly and honestly feel inspired and grateful for the opportunity to not only network with so many remarkable individuals, but also to be privileged enough to get to know them on a personal level. An experience unparalleled to anything I’ve ever experienced in my life … the Mandela Rhodes magic.”

Lindokuhle Matsebula
Country of origin: Swaziland
Nominating Institution: University of Pretoria
Current Institution: University of Pretoria
Degree: MSc Real Estate

“It was a privilege and an honour to meet and interact with the other Scholars, to hear of their backgrounds and intentions. Walking the path of freedom also emphasised for me the need to translate privilege into opportunities for others. I am humbled and inspired by it all, for there is hope for Africa.”

Aviwe May
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Rhodes University
Current Institution: University of the Witwatersrand
Degree: BSc (Hons) Chemistry

“The introductory workshop was indeed a great time for me. I have gained a lot, especially in learning about the individuals whose names have been combined to form the Foundation. The information I gained from the tours and discussions continues to stir thoughts in my mind about the contradiction of Rhodes’ and Mandela’s lives. The enneagram was my highlight above everything else.”

Leané Meiring
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of the Witwatersrand
Current Institution: University of the Witwatersrand
Degree: MA Drama Theory

“The workshop gently introduces one to the community and challenges one to confront your own thoughts and feelings around the complexities of the two patrons. I enjoyed the experiential process of ‘walking in their shoes’ as this allowed me to understand the complex heritage of the Foundation, but also South Africa. The workshop challenged me to unpack my feelings and thoughts around the contradictions and complexities that we are navigating every day.”

Sizwe Mkwanazi
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of Johannesburg
Current Institution: University of Johannesburg

“I am very grateful to be a Mandela Rhodes Scholar. From the interviews to the introductory workshop I have learnt a lot from the Foundation and from those who are championing all the great work of the MRF. I am now a better person, than I was and I understand leadership in a much better way than before.”
INTRODUCING THE MANDELA RHODES SCHOLARS OF 2015

Lehlohonolo Mofokeng
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of the Free State
Current Institution: University of the Witwatersrand
Degree: M Ed Educational Leadership & Policy Studies

“Two words that cross my mind when I think of the first workshop are: honour and gratitude. The workshop reminded me that privileges I have only have my name on them, but they are not mine. Being exposed to such a multitude of young, motivated, energetic and visionary people reiterated my firm belief that Africa is talented – Africa can.”

Selokwane Morake
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Rhodes University
Current Institution: Rhodes University
Degree: MA Biochemistry

“The introductory workshop was an enriching and unique experience. Being part of such a diverse and determined group of young Africans has opened my eyes to the incredible future that Africa is about to have. The environment that the MRF team nurtured in this workshop allowed for authentic interactions and friendships to occur naturally.”

Tumelo Morobane
Country of origin: Botswana
Nominating Institution: University of the Free State
Current Institution: University of the Free State
Degree: MSc Actuarial Science

“The workshop was enlightening and humbling. If there is anything I took away from the workshop it is how much growing I need to do as a leader, and especially the importance of self-leadership. I am filled with so much gratitude to be part of the MRF family. I am inspired and excited about the opportunity to learn from everyone.”

Luyolo Mphiti
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of the Witwatersrand
Current Institution: University of the Witwatersrand
Degree: MA Political Studies

“The first workshop was truly one that inspired me about the future of this country – the vibrancy, energy and clarity in all the Scholars was truly inspiring. I am confident that our country is in good hands. Matla!”

Sinikiwe Mqadi
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Independent
Current Institution: University of the Witwatersrand
Degree: Hons Journalism

“The leadership workshop vastly expanded my horizons. I discovered the importance of consciousness and accountability – how you talk and think about matters. I learnt that a leader must be accountable and responsible at all times. The workshop allowed me to communicate with, and collaborate with, fellow Africans from different disciplines. Thank you Mandela Rhodes Foundation.”
“I have never been through a more thrilling experience in my life. My cohort, the speakers and the facilitators all made it easy to simply be myself. Best of all, everyone checked their egos at the door. I will miss all of you guys and cannot wait to see you again in July. Much love to all of you.”

Lumumba Mthembu
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Rhodes University
Current Institution: Rhodes University
Degree: MA English

“I am not the kind of person to use words like inspiring and stirring, but that’s what the workshop was for me. Meeting and getting to know such an optimistic, free-thinking and emotionally mature group of people makes me feel optimistic for the futures of the countries we hail from.”

Nicholas Mulgrew
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Independent
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: MA English Language & Literature

“Very few platforms exist which allow one to share their honest experience regarding the concept of leadership in whatever form they believe leadership is and should be. Believe me when I say I was in a good state of discomfort throughout the workshop and realised that this was deep development taking place which was achieved through genuine facilitation.”

Luthando Lulu Mzilikazi
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Independent
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: BComs Economics/Finance

“I think the majority of us have attended such leadership building events before; what made the difference to me was that for the first time, we were being accepted as leaders in our respective fields. The level of humility and respect added weight to our contributions and changed my approach to the event entirely. For once we were sharing and deliberating rather than being advised; accepted and respected rather than taught. This made me open up and deal with the issues at hand seriously, making me believe in the MRF system. Thank you for this life-changing and heart-warming introduction.”

Vincent Naude
Country of origin: Namibia
Nominating Institution: Independent
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: MSc Biological Sciences

“The workshop was organised in a way that all of us had to find it interesting. I anticipated individual views on leadership as this topic is often bewildering because of different conceptions. I was astonished by how the MRF team facilitated a shifting of our mindset towards the pillars of the Foundation, and avoided us losing sight of the meaning of the content.”

Daniel Ndima

"The leadership workshop had a great impact on me in terms of looking at leadership through a different lens. I was especially affected when we unpacked African leadership in our fields of study. I became conscious of the many excellent leaders and role models who really have paved ways for us as Scholars to progress in our fields passionately."

Rene Nsanzubuhoro
Country of origin: Swaziland
Nominating Institution: University of Cape Town
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: MSc Civil Engineering

"Reading through Long Walk To Freedom you immediately get the sense that Madiba was made very uncomfortable by the concept of categorising people, be it on racial grounds or sexual orientation. I think the first workshop really re-emphasised this. This is especially critical in promoting peace and harmony amongst citizens of Africa; we all should begin by accepting and respecting people for who they are. What has really amazed me is that all MRF Scholars manifested this attribute and for me this made the whole experience such a success."

Joel Obe
Country of origin: DRC

"A year’s worth of experience for each day spent. A sense of belonging through spontaneous connections with total strangers, high-minded strangers who became high-valued partners. And why not say it: comrades sharing a common vision. This experience filled the gap between my doubts and my dreams about Africa, giving me strength to stand up and start making that dream come true."

Lisa Sidambe
Country of origin: Zimbabwe

"Having explored the disparate environments which impacted on the leadership attributes of both Rhodes and Mandela, I came to the realisation that great leadership is a cumulative effect of all the variegated experiences that leaders encounter in their trajectory of life. I laughed, loved, smiled and cried. The MRF magic can never be adequately captured by any voice bestowed upon the human species."

Chad Sonn

"What an enriching and exhilarating experience. As a group, we are diverse, exuberant and tolerant, and I feel honoured to belong to such a supportive and affectionate family. I am grateful for the opportunity and look forward to the rest of the year as a Mandela Rhodes Scholar. May the MRF and our beloved continent go from strength to strength in 2015 and beyond."

“What a way to start our year in residence. The leadership workshop was phenomenal and from it I gained a clear sense that I am part of something exceptional. Self-leadership is at the heart of leadership, as leadership begins with you even before a title is bestowed. This was undeniably the best leadership workshop I have ever experienced.”

Zainab Thawer
Country of origin: Tanzania
Nominating Institution: University of Cape Town
Current Institution: University of Cape Town
Degree: MA Public Health

“The workshop was a brilliant and inspirational start to the year 2015. It helped facilitate self-learning and awareness, and made me realise the importance of nurturing the ideology of the self before trying to change society. It was also wonderful listening to the life stories of other Scholars. I feel humbled to be part of the Mandela Rhodes community and hope to develop positive leadership qualities.”

Beauty Umana
Country of origin: Nigeria
Nominating Institution: University of the Western Cape

“Sharing a space with young Africans who share similar passion and enthusiasm about Africa was very empowering for me. I left the workshop with the feeling of responsibility to myself and to others. I became more aware of myself thanks to the workshop. Rhodes and Mandela paved the way; I just have to follow suit.”

Zola Valashiya
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: University of the Free State

“Leadership is not what I thought it was. That was the first thing I realised after learning about the dynamics and inner workings of different leaders across different eras. A leader is determined by their actions and the impact of their legacy today. ‘… It’s not only about how they lived, but how well they died.’”

Naledi Yaziyo
Country of origin: South Africa
Nominating Institution: Independent
Current Institution: University of the Witwatersrand

“The word leadership has for me previously conjured up either images of men in suits or do-gooders who, believing they somehow are the chosen ones, shun all else in order to lead others on the path to world redemption. This workshop made leadership real for me. It made leadership seem possible for me.”

A MESSAGE FROM THE FoMRF

The Friends of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation celebrate 12 years of progress that we have made! FoMRF provided over $750,000 in grants in 2014, bringing our total grants funded to over $7 million.

FoMRF has endowed eight Mandela Rhodes Scholarships and plans to endow a ninth in 2015. FoMRF has helped fund the Mandela Rhodes Community, the alumni organisation which aims to extend the leadership development aspect of the Mandela Rhodes Scholarships.

Elsewhere, FoMRF’s support over the last nine years has allowed the South African Education and Environment Project (SAEP) to expand its Bridging Year programme substantially, and to continue laying the groundwork for a larger Bridging Academy. FoMRF started support for a rural secondary school in Limpopo Province through the Northern Environment Project (SAEP) to expand its Bridging Academy.

HOW TO DONATE TO THE MANDELA RHODES FOUNDATION

Since the founding benefaction by The Rhodes Trust brought the partnership that is The Mandela Rhodes Foundation into being in 2003, the MRF and its flagship Scholarships programme in particular have benefited from the extraordinary generosity of major donors who have made funds available to establish further Mandela Rhodes Scholarships on a sustainable basis. These donors are recognised and honoured on pages 35 and 36 of the Yearbook. Anyone who might be interested in exploring this route and would like further details should make direct contact with the Operations Director of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation, Ernst Gerber, at +27 21 424 3346, or via e-mail ernst@mandelarhodes.org.za.

The MRF is registered as a Trust (Trust number IT5164/2003), as a Public Benefit Organisation (PBO number 930004744) and as a Non-profit Organisation (NPO number 038-181-NPO).

The Foundation is therefore in a position to issue tax certificates for donations made in compliance with South African Income Tax Law. General donations to support our operations are also most welcome, according to the means of the donor. Any related queries about donating, for example on the tax-exempt status of the Foundation Trust, or gifts to be made from other countries, should also be directed to the Operations Director.

It is also possible to make a direct deposit for the benefit of the Foundation using the following bank account details:

TRUSTEE’S RESPONSIBILITY AND APPROVAL

The Trustees are required to maintain adequate accounting records and are responsible for the content and integrity of the annual financial statements and related financial information included in this report. It is their responsibility to ensure that the annual financial statements fairly present the state of affairs of the trust as at the end of the financial year and the results of its operations and cash flows for the period then ended, in conformity with International Financial Reporting Standards. The external auditors are engaged to express an independent opinion on the annual financial statements.

The annual financial statements are prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards and are based upon appropriate accounting policies consistently applied and supported by reasonable and prudent judgments and estimates.

The Trustees acknowledge that they are ultimately responsible for the system of internal financial control established by the trust and place considerable importance on maintaining a strong control environment. To enable the Trustees to meet these responsibilities, the board sets standards for internal control aimed at reducing the risk of error or loss in a cost effective manner. The standards include the proper delegation of responsibilities within a clearly defined framework, effective accounting procedures and adequate segregation of duties to ensure an acceptable level of risk. These controls are monitored throughout the trust and all employees are required to maintain the highest ethical standards in ensuring the trust’s business is conducted in a manner that in all reasonable circumstances is above reproach. The focus of risk management in the trust is on identifying, assessing, managing and monitoring all known forms of risk across the trust. While operating risk cannot be fully eliminated, the trust endeavours to minimise it by ensuring that appropriate infrastructure, controls, systems and ethical behaviour are applied and managed within predetermined procedures and constraints.

The Trustees are of the opinion, based on the information and explanations given by management, that the system of internal control provides reasonable assurance that the financial records may be relied on for the preparation of the annual financial statements. However, any system of internal financial control can provide only reasonable, and not absolute, assurance against material misstatement or loss.

The Trustees have reviewed the trust’s cash flow forecast for the year to 31 December 2015 and, in the light of this review and the current financial position, they are satisfied that the trust has or has access to adequate resources to continue in operational existence for the foreseeable future.

The external auditors are responsible for independently reviewing and reporting on the trust’s annual financial statements. The annual financial statements have been examined by the trusts’ external auditors. The summary financial statements are derived from the audited financial statements and the auditors report is presented on page 41.

The summary financial statements are set out on pages 44 to 47, which have been prepared on the going concern basis and in accordance with the basis as described in note 1 as applicable to summary financial statements. These were approved by the board on 9 March 2015 and were signed on its behalf by:
INDEPENDENT AUDITOR’S REPORT ON SUMMARY FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
TO TRUSTEES OF THE MANDELA RHODES FOUNDATION TRUST

The summary financial statements, set out on pages 44 to 47, which comprise the summary statement of financial position as at 31 December 2014, and the summary statements of comprehensive income, changes in equity and cash flows for the year then ended, and related notes, are derived from the audited financial statements of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust for the year ended 31 December 2014. We expressed an unmodified audit opinion on those financial statements in our report dated 9 March 2015.

The summary financial statements do not contain all the disclosures required by International Financial Reporting Standards as applicable to annual financial statements. Reading the summary financial statements, therefore, is not a substitute for reading the audited financial statements of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust.

Trustees’ Responsibility for the Summary Financial Statements
The trustees are responsible for the preparation of a summary of the audited financial statements in accordance with the basis as described in note 1 as applicable to summary financial statements.

Auditor’s Responsibility
Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the summary financial statements based on our procedures, which were conducted in accordance with International Standard on Auditing (ISA) 810, “Engagements to Report on Summary Financial Statements.”

Opinion
In our opinion, the summary financial statements derived from the audited financial statements of The Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust for the year ended 31 December 2014 are consistent, in all material respects, with those financial statements, in accordance with the basis as described in note 1 as applicable to summary financial statements.

1 Review of activities

Main business and operations

The Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust was formalised on 9 June 2003 as a joint initiative between Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela and the Rhodes Trustees (hereinafter jointly referred to as ‘the Founders’). The Rhodes Trust pledged a benefaction over time of Ten Million Pounds Sterling (£10 000 000) for the purposes envisaged by the Trust Deed.

The Founders wish to contribute to the development of exceptional leadership capacity in Africa. This objective shall be advanced through the development and implementation of the Mandela Rhodes programmes more fully described in the Strategy Plan approved by the Trustees in February 2004 and reviewed annually.

In line with the strategic growth plan referred to above, the number of the Mandela Rhodes Scholars elected annually has grown as follows: 8 in 2005; 15 in 2006; 20 in 2007; 23 in 2008, 28 in 2009, 29 in 2010, 27 in 2011, 23 in 2012, 27 in 2013, 35 in 2014, and 40 in 2015. In addition to the Scholars who completed the one year programme, the Foundation funds Scholars who are on a Masters programme and their Scholarships are carried over from the previous year (15 Scholars (2013:12)). Costs have therefore increased in line with the strategic growth plan approved by the Trustees and reviewed annually.

A staff reorganisation plan was successfully implemented in April 2014, resulting in a substantial decrease in costs.

The operating results and state of affairs of the trust are set out in the summary financial statements and do not in our opinion require any further comment.

Net surplus of the trust was R97 858 101 (2013: R90 069 305 surplus), after taxation of Rnil (2013: Rnil).

Substantial donations were received from The McCall MacBain Foundation (R10 675 428), The Friends of the Mandela Rhodes Foundation (USA) (R6 000 000), The Leverhulme Trust (R9 025 050), and OUP via The Mandela Rhodes Foundation Trust Two (R24 000 000) in addition to contributions from other donors who have chosen to spread the payment of their commitment over a four year period.

In addition the Foundation continued to receive the annual benefaction from the Rhodes Trust. An amount of £500 000 (R8 725 395) was received for the year ending 31 December 2014 (2013: £500 000 (R6 976 54)).

2 Events after the reporting period

The Trustees are not aware of any matter or circumstance arising since the end of the financial year.

3 Investment policy

The investment of the Foundation’s assets are overseen by the Investment Committee on behalf of the board. The Foundation’s assets are invested in a suitable mix of equities, inflation linked property, bonds and cash as well as in hedged or absolute-return funds. These investments are typically through collective investment vehicles managed by leading asset managers.

The Investment Committee receives periodic information and advice from Riscura and AlphaWealth (the appointed asset consultants and investment advisors for the funds) as to the appropriate asset allocation targets and exposures as well as the choice of investment managers and funds to invest in. Nonetheless the decisions on these matters remain the responsibility of the Investment Committee. The array of funds and their respective investment managers is reproduced elsewhere in this document.

The investment objective for the investment portfolio is to achieve at least a 4.5% p.a. real return over the long run for a reasonable degree of risk.

As at the end of December 2014, the investment portfolio has been performing very well relative to the investment objectives. The portfolio has achieved an annualised return of 14.2% (2013: 14.6%) per year since inception against an investment target of 10.4% (2013: 10.3%) per annum (i.e. the SA CPI Inflation rate +4.5% outperformance target per year) which translates into a real return of 8.3% (2013: 8.8%) per year. It has achieved this with low volatility of 6.0% (2013: 6.5%) p.a. (which is lower than the composite index benchmark’s volatility) and with a very high degree of return relative to risk (as represented by a Sharpe Ratio of 1.4 (2013: 1.4)) since inception (where the Sharpe Ratio indicates the degree of excess return earned per unit risk taken). At the end of December 2014, the investment portfolio now has a 50% (2013: 50%) exposure to South African securities comprising 14% (2013: 21%) in SA long-only equity funds; 15% (2013: 11%) in equity hedged multi-strategy funds; and the balance in cash and cash alternatives. 50% (2013: 50%) of the investment exposure is international (not including the international exposure within the SA-listed equity funds) of which 20% (2013: 18%) is invested in international...

long-only funds; 20% (2013: 20%) in absolute-return/hedged funds; 4% (2013: 3%) in African equity funds; 5% (2013: 5%) in international real-estate and the balance in managed-cash.

The Investment Committee meets quarterly and continues to review the performance and allocations of the Foundation’s investment portfolio and will make further adjustments as and when deemed necessary.

Note 1:

The summary financial statements are prepared in accordance with criteria developed by management. Under management’s established criteria, management discloses the summary statement of financial position, summary statement of comprehensive income, changes in equity, statement of cash flows and other information which management determined as relevant. These summary financial statements are derived from the audited financial statements of The Mandela Rhodes Trust for the year ended 31 December 2014, which were prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards.

The annual financial statements are available from The Mandela Rhodes Foundation on request. The annual financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2014 have been available since 9 March 2015.
‘Let our peoples, the ones formerly poor citizens and the others good patricians – politicians, business people, educators, health workers, scientists, engineers and technicians, sports people and entertainers, activists for charitable relief – join hands to build on what we have achieved together and help construct a humane African world, whose emergence will say a new order is born in which we are each our brother’s keeper.

‘And so let that outcome, as we open a millennium, herald the advent of a glorious summer of a partnership for freedom, peace, prosperity and friendship.

‘Today we celebrate a century of achievement by the Rhodes Trust through the founding of a new initiative based on a new partnership.

‘Bringing together those two names represents a symbolic moment in the closing of the historic circle. And we know with confidence that The Mandela Rhodes Foundation will substantively contribute to a better life for the people of South Africa and the African continent.

‘It was in South Africa that Cecil John Rhodes made most of the money which he left in legacy for scholars from across the world to benefit from for the past hundred years.

‘It speaks of a growing sense of global responsibility that in this second century of its operations the Rhodes Trust finds it appropriate to redirect attention and resources back to the origin of that wealth.

‘We can only imagine how Rhodes himself would have identified with this decision to develop human capacity in modern-day South Africa, enabling that country to continue being a competitive presence in the world as it was during his times.

‘We are mindful of the honour and significance attached to our name in this joining up with that of Cecil John Rhodes. We recognise that the name and person of Mandela are being accorded historic symbolism in this new initiative.

‘We shall be truly honoured if all who use our name in praise do so in full recognition that what is accorded Mandela should stand for every single South African and African. We would feel demeaned if adulation paid to us is to set us apart from the masses from which we come and in whose name we achieved whatever it is we are deemed to have achieved.

‘Ours is the name for the labourer who toils on the African farm, fighting for a life of dignity; the girl child battling against great odds for an opportunity to realise her potential; the poor AIDS orphan bereft of family or care; the rural poor eking out a subsistence, deprived of the most basic services and facilities. It is in their names and those of others like them, and in the name of all South Africans, that we lend ours to this initiative, seeking that a better future be built for all of them.

‘In this, I am certain, Cecil John Rhodes and I would have made common cause.’
